ACCORDING TO THEIR LIGHTS

Savages Ruled by Customs and Ceremonies as Unalterable as Are Beliefs of the West.

If life in the New Hebrides can be described in irreducible terms of primitive instinct, it is none the less governed by an elaborate ritual of tribal ceremony, by the powerful influence of taboo, by customs as rigid and impregnable as the towering forest fastness. That the old are buried alive is as right and orderly to the truculent savage as that night follows day, or that a warrior dies by the hand of his own arrow. Against this barrier of dark faiths and unproved certainties, the wanderer from the West, with his troubled vision and ever-ready feet, throws up for himself but a flimsy counter-illusion of civilization. Let his trading schooner make their perilous voyages through the channels, charting in and out of the nameless, landlocked harbors. Let him spread his net of commercialism. Let him take away pearls, tortoise shell, beche de mer, copra, sandalwood, or perhaps a human cargo destined for the great labor markets East and West, leaving in their place the cheap product of factories, or, better still, secretly, guns and ammunition. The chances are that one day his fate will find him out. And if the time should come when he returns no more to that same civilization which betrayed him in an ultimate need to the savages of an obscure island whose only costume is a necklace, his death will merely cancel an outstanding account.—Gertrude Emerson in Asia Magazine.

ADAPTED TO MODERN NEEDS

Seeming Proof That Feet of Women Have Developed With Enlargement of Their Work.

The different sizes chosen for the standard boots for women did not apparently include size one, which raises an interesting point, remarks the Manchester (Eng.) Guardian. Some little time ago an old curiosity shop in a country town showed in its window a woman's shoe of ancient date. It was made of a gray-blue brocaded silk, with a large square-cut tongue and fastened with a buckle. The heel was very high, made of wood and covered with red-brown leather. It was a beautiful shoe, and might have belonged to a lady of Marie Antoinette's court, or even have trodden dances in the time of our Merry Monarch. But it was so extraordinarily small that 999 women would have failed to get it on.

The thousandth happened to see it, was fascinated by its appearance, and asked if she might try it on. It fitted exactly.

Was the normal size foot of that age the abnormal one of this? One wonders. And have women's hands, feet and waists developed to suit the work which nowadays they have to do?

Attractive Tiled Roofs.

One of the most romantic touches of old Spain and Mexico is transferred to southern California through the medium of its tile roofs on the better class of domestic work. The work left by the old Franciscan priests in their missions throughout southern California and mostly done by the Indians, who were good potters and who became expert under the direction of the monks, is the source of this new departure. It is claimed that the variations in the tile, making it possible for them to fit together, was done over the cuff of an Indian's leg, the wet clay being molded by that method and then laid aside to dry. The character of these old tiles consists not only in the rich red and reddish-brown tones in the clay or the texture, a sort of semi-rough matt glaze, but from the irregular, mottled and shaped pieces going into the roof.—Dwight James Baum in Architecture.

Value of Thunderstorm.

A thunderstorm is one of the best of physicians. In fact it is worth a whole army of doctors working day and night. What they can only assume it can cure, clear out, absolutely abash.

Lightning makes the atmosphere fresh. It is the cleansing fire of heaven. Where it passes no germ can live. But an even greater cleanser, for it leaves no nook or corner untouched, unwashed, unflushed, is the torrential rain which almost invariably accompanies a thunderstorm. Think of billions of tons of water passing through the atmosphere, carrying down with it thousands of tons of solid matter in the shape of smoke and ashes, and effluvia, and germs untold and swirling all these things from street and alley and court and roof. Why, no spring cleaning could effect in a century what a thunder shower does in ten minutes.

To Collect Old Scotch Maps.

The Royal Scottish Geographical society has undertaken the formation of a national collection of old maps of Scotland and has issued an appeal for contributions of both maps and money. It is hoped to secure as nearly as possible a complete collection of atlases, charts, county maps, district maps, road books, town plans, manuscript maps, etc., issued prior to the time of the Ordnance survey, about 1800. The earliest satisfactory maps of Scotland date from 1564.—Scientific American.

Music is a Moral Law.

There is an intense need for art, and above all for music in the daily lives of our people, and it is through the public schools that the musical resources of the younger generation, at present lying dormant, must be awakened.

Why should our girls and boys being educated to be good business men and women be denied development of all higher intellectual and moral side of their natures? It is here that music most directly exerts its influence. To quote the words of Plato: "Music is a moral law. It is the essence of order, and leads to all that is good, just and beautiful."

There is always the possibility, too, that embryo Patti and Carnos are amongst our children and these can add as much to the future fame of our country as orators, poets, writers, or successful business men—then let them too, have their choice in school days, as well as the others.

USED HUMAN FLESH FOR BAIT

Hawaiian Kings Utilized Bodies of Slaves or Enemies to Lure Monsters of the Ocean.

In the days of Hawaiian kings, every part of the bone and skin of a shark was supposed to confer unflinching bravery upon the possessor. Wherefore, shark fishing was then a royal sport. In those days, the bait much in vogue was the human body—either the body of a slave or of someone against whom the royal personage had taken a sudden dislike, according to Onting.

Kamehameha I was especially proud and jealous of his title of the Great Shark-Fisher. He kept his victims penned up near the great temple of Moouiki, near Kawaunoha, on the island of Hawaii. He therefore had a plentiful supply always on hand.

The person chosen to act as bait, was killed, cut up, placed in a calabash, and allowed to mellow for a few days. The mellowing process consummated, the bait was lashed to the outrigger of the royal canoe in such a manner as to leave behind a dripping trail of blood and oil. Upon reaching the fishing grounds, the bait was unlashd. Large hooks fashioned from wood or bone, were then "baited" and lowered over-side. Historians tell us that great skill and courage were shown by the members of the royal party on such occasions in the roping and landing of the captured shark.

History of Ballooning.

The first ascension in a balloon filled with hydrogen was made in 1783 by M. Charles and M. Robert at Paris. Henry Cavendish, about 1790, discovered the great levity of hydrogen gas, and the following year Doctor Black of Edinburgh announced that a thin bladder filled with this gas must ascend into the air. Cavallo experimented along these lines and found that a bladder was too heavy, paper not airtight, but that soap bubbles filled with gas rose to the ceiling of the room. The first successful balloon was made by the Montgolfier brothers, in France, in 1782. It was a fire balloon, inflated with hot air from burning paper. The Montgolfier success led M. Charles to experiment with hydrogen gas, and with M. Robert he traveled 3, miles in a hydrogen balloon fitted with a safety valve. In 1785 Blanchard, the first professional aeronaut, with Dr. John Jeffries of Boston, crossed the English channel. Military balloons were used at the battle of Solferino in 1859 and by the federal army during the Civil war near Washington in 1861.
