DON'T "BEAR" AMERICA

It is time to repeat the famous advice of old J. Pierpont Morgan to a Wall Street friend: "Never be a bear on the United States of America."

There are too many Americans just now, not merely New York bankers but businessmen in all parts of the country, who are "bearing" the United States. It is unpatriotic, and it is foolish. It is unbusinesslike.

Morgan's implicit belief in the everlasting economic success of his country was based on the solid rock of such facts as these:

We have incomparably greater natural resources than any other nation on earth—more potential wealth in iron and copper and other metals in fuel, in arable land, in timber, in water power.

We have greater manufacturing facilities than any other nation.

We have greater business energy and ability than any other nation.

We are the largest body of intelligent, coherent people, speaking the same language and having the same culture and the same standards of life and work, that exists in the world. We therefore have the largest home market for goods that any nation has and the greatest power of producing goods for export.

There are more potent reasons for optimism today than there were in the elder Morgan's time. Not only have we limitless power to produce wealth, but we have—or will have—an adequate fleet of merchantmen to carry it all over the world. And with this unprecedented transportation power, we have a foreign market, created by war's devastation and by our own increased prestige everywhere, that is ready to absorb all we can produce for years to come.

All we need, to enjoy this unparalleled opportunity, is to make the transition from a war basis to a peace basis. This transition will come more easily and quickly than any of these croakers imagine.

IT ISN'T YOUR TOWN, IT'S YOU (From Boston Chamber of Commerce Current Affairs)

If you want to live in the kind of a town

Like the kind of a town you like.
You needn't slip your clothes in a grip
And start on a long, long hike.
You'll only find what you've left behind.

For there's nothing that's really new.
It's a knock at yourself when you knock your town.

It isn't the Town—it's You!

Real towns are not made by men afraid.

Lest somebody else gets ahead, When everyone works and nobody shirks.

You can raise a town from the dead.
And if, while you make your personal stake,

Your neighbors can make one, too, Your town will be what you want to see.

It isn't the Town—it's You!
