WHY THEY ARE RUSSIA

The expedition at Archangel was sent to guard supplies belonging to the allies from the clutches of the Bolsheviks. So long as the Bolsheviks continue to menace, it will have to stay. That is the military reason why our troops are there.

But many people, not quite understanding the military necessity, keep asking why the boys are allowed to remain. We are not at war with Russia, they say. We are not, technically, at war with the Bolsheviks. Why, then, subject our boys up there to worse hardships than those suffered by those fighting against Germany?

An answer which lies deeper than any immediate military necessity, and which may perhaps satisfy one's soul even when "protecting munitions" cannot quite content one's mind, may be found in the letter of a Michigan Private to the Detroit News.

This lad tells of going on a tour through the swamps. He and his friend were lost in the darkness and had to wade through water which froze in their clothes. They finally came to a village and walked into a house. They could not talk with the family, so they set down their rifle and began to take off the frozen clothing. The men present saw the point. Americans were clothed, and the with coffee and hot milk. They contributed their hardback to the meal, as the Russians there have very little bread.

"We slept on the floor with the family all night and left for camp at 5 in the morning, after more hot milk and with our clothes well dried out. I gave them three gold spoons that I had in my pack as payment. You see, they're good-hearted people and will do anything for the Americans. That's why we're here—to make friends with them, and they make it easy to do."

This refers to the Russian peasants, of course. "We're up against the Bolsheviks. They fight from behind rocks and trees. If they capture an American, it's goodbye. The peasants, though, are the best-hearted people in the world."

There it is—to help the Russians by fighting the Bolsheviks who do not really represent them at all, and to make friends for America of the real Russian people.

HALF A LOAF AT PARIS

Ex-President Taft, urging a Chicago audience to support the president's efforts at Paris in behalf of a World League, said:

"Let us support any real League of Nations that is brought back from France, even if it does not give us all we desire. Let us discuss its provisions not in a nagging, critical way but in a constructive spirit, with team work from all."

Mr. Taft is a pioneer League of Nations advocate. He has given years of thought to the subject and has very definite ideas of his own as to the organization and functions of the league. If he is broadminded enough to take the best he can get in the way of a world federation, in a thankful spirit, with a view to remedying its defects step by step hereafter, surely American statesmen who know far less than he does about the matter, and have not had the title of his international experience, can afford to take the same view.

No sensible man expects that the plan worked out at Paris will be perfect and final. But unless all signs fail, it is going to be a start toward the working out of a genuinely civilized world-organization—and a better start than most people expected when the armistice was signed.

TEETH AND FLU

Dr. Thomas Darlington, speaking from his experience as medical officer at Camp Lee, Va., has this to say about the flu epidemic:

"If every one of the thousands of persons who have died recently of influenza had brushed their teeth as they should, in my opinion most of them would have been alive today."

This is a striking piece of testimony.

as to the importance of keeping the mouth clean. Many other physicians express similar views. And their remarks apply not only to influenza, but to colds and coughs in general, and to all the other contagions that find entrance into the human body by way of the mouth.

It appears that simply scrubbing the teeth—or to use a more comprehensive term, cleansing the mouth—is about the most effective measure of disease prevention there is. Any good doctor or dentist will willingly give specific instructions about the matter. Most of them seem to agree that while antiseptic pastes, powders and washes are useful, they are not essential. The main thing is to use a brush on the teeth, regularly and frequently, to scrub off the germ colonies adhering to them, and to flush out the mouth with plenty of water, to get rid of the aforesaid germs and also the food particles in which they thrive.

MORE EGGS TONIC

We have taken the agency for E. J. Reeder's celebrated "More Eggs Tonic" which we know by our own experience is one of the finest things going both for eggs and also for sickness among the chickens. It sells for $1 a package but for the balance of February we will give you 20 percent discount in order to give everybody a chance to try this valuable remedy.

Dredge at Work—

The dredge Oregon is now engaged in dredging the river channel below the old Altree sawmill. It is reported that the dredgings are being dumped back into the river. If this is correct it would seem that the debris would only wash back into the channel again within a short time and the benefit of the work be lost.—Yaquina Bay News.

To offset this story going the rounds Manager Hutchings phoned into the Times office Wednesday to the effect that the local cannery had received eastern orders for one car of Bartlett pears, one car of string beans, one car of berries and one car of pumpkin. These orders will be taken care of here, besides the regular season run. By this it looks as though some guy, gink, gasp or gazell was "off his base." —Times.

You're getting a June Style in a February Maxwell

THE MAXWELL car of today is so very improved in appearance that many people believe we have produced a new model. That is not the case.

It is the same chassis, scarcely with a change, on which 300,000 Maxwells have been built.

But it is a better looking car. It is finer in finish; angular lines have been straightened out; fenders improved; bonnet simplified; cowl made flush with the top line of the body; seats thickened by three inches; chromium dash installed; gas tank slung in the rear, etc.

There are twenty-four things done to make it more beautiful.

We made the Maxwell simple to start with five years ago. Then we kept on making and making these cars all alike. We have now completed 300,000 of them.

There is logic in doing one thing and doing it well. We have followed that logic. And results tell today.

Maxwells have always been noted for their reliability. Now they will become noted for their beauty.

And today we are in a position to give you a June style in a February Maxwell, which a year ago seemed quite out of the question on account of the war.

Come and see the latest Maxwell.
