GETTING DOWN TO BUSINESS

"It is my wish that you may never have the fateful hours I have had," wailed Herr Eraberger, reporting to the German national assembly the latest allied terms. "We on the armistice commission have had to bear untold responsibility."

It is good to learn that the German government, and through it the German nation, is thus learning, at last, something of the untold responsibility it has got to bear as the inevitable penalty of its untold crimes against civilization.

While official announcement of the terms is still lacking, all accounts agree that they are drastic beyond anything previously imposed, and far beyond anything expected by the Germans themselves. The delegates went to the conference blustering and bragging, after the manner of their kind and the fashion set by their government. They came back to Weimar in a cold sweat, trembling like beaten hounds. They had met their master. Foch had absolutely refused to parley. He had for them only the curt order, "Sign there!" And they signed.

The conditions are said to include the reduction of the German army to a mere police force of 200,000 or so, the control of German munition factories by the allies, the payment by Germany of all the expenses of the armies of occupation, and the fulfillment to the letter of all conditions, soon to be announced, as the demolition of the forts at Heligoland and the Kiel Canal, the destruction of the entire effective German war fleet, the restoration in kind of the machinery stolen from France and Belgium and the imposition of a huge indemnity.

This is getting down to business. Germany has shown no sign of repentance and has no legitimate claim for mercy. The more severe the terms, and the more promptly the peace conference applies them, the better satisfied America will be.

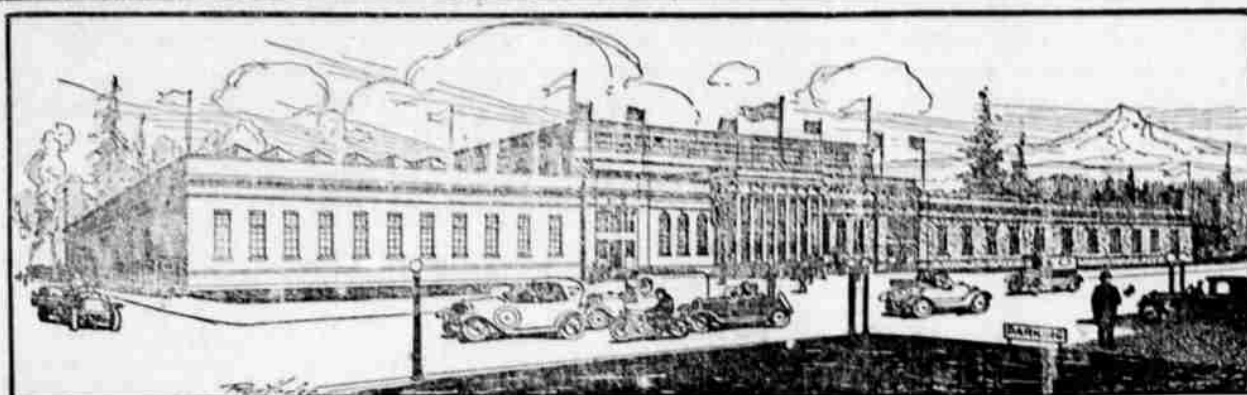

THE PUBLIC SQUARE

What good is the public square anyhow? None unless it is made an actual factor in public life. Almost every town has one. In many of them there is a rickety little bandstand. In most of them the grass in summer is a little too long, the walks are untended, the trees untrimmed and unsprayed. But these village and town centers are going to claim a little attention very soon, for in every community there is the problem of a public memorial for the boys who went to war. In many cases it is hinted there is to be a German gun as a trophy, and the natural place for these things is in the center of the town, where everybody can share in them.

Since this is so, the square itself should come in for a little grooming. It should be put in such shining condition as will of itself do honor to the boys, and will make it a place where the public will delight to gather. And then it should be made the center of public life. The country had a lot of this during the war, and it brought the people together as the people of a true democracy should be brought.

There should be not only the oc-

STOCKMEN TO ERECT $250,000 STADIUM IN PORTLAND

PROPOSED LIVESTOCK EXPOSITION BUILDING TO COVER SEVEN AND ONE-HALF ACRES

The new home of the Pacific International Livestock Exposition, to be held November 15-22 at Portland, is to be one of the largest and most complete institutions of its kind in the world. The plans contemplate a stadium, judging rings and sections for all kinds of stock, covering in all seven and one-half acres. Stockmen throughout the Northwest are now raising $250,000 for the erection of this structure. The Oregon legislature has appropriated $25,000 for the annual premium list of this show. The livestock exhibition is now in its ninth year and draws the breeders and dairymen from California, Oregon, Montana, Idaho, Washington and British Columbia. The housing of the show in adequate quarters means the recognition of the value of the livestock industry of the Northwest.

Snappy Gleanings from Exchanges in Linn and Other Counties of Oregon

As Sensible as Nature—

Men have just as much sense as nature, anyway, says the Capital Journal. If it's foolish to peel off winter underwear just because February acts like spring, how about the risks those budding trees are taking?

Albany Boys, Too—

When the boys of the 65th get home next week they can display their newly acquired French to the girls they left behind them by reciting with spirit and feeling:

"Je vous aime,
Je vous adore;
Que voulez vous
Qu'je vous encore."

But, on second thought, perhaps they'd better not. They might get the tart and suspicious answer: "How many of those French hussies have you told that to?"—Eugene Register.

Here Overnight—

Rev. Edward Blair of Marshfield was an overnight visitor in Albany and went to Portland this morning. He is a former Albany minister.

Went to Dallas—

Lester Maxon of Montana stopped in Albany yesterday and left this morning for Dallas to visit friends. He is returning from a trip to California.

Returned to Portland—

F. M. Brown of Portland, secretary of the Oregon Fish and Game Commission, returned to Portland this morning after attending the meeting held last evening to make arrangements for forming a club.

Here Last Night—

Dr. J. G. Gill, of Lebanon, visited in Albany last evening.

On Way to Mill City—

Angelus Kaifas of Seattle was in Albany this morning on his way to Mill City to work.

To Attend Auto Show—

A. B. Taylor and A. T. Worley left this morning for Portland to attend the auto show.

G. M. Geisendorfer, proprietor of the famous Cascadia Soda Springs, is an Albany visitor. Mr. Geisendorfer is one of the jurors for the March term of court.

EDISON BUYS HIS WAR STAMP LIMIT

"Prosperity Is Coming When War Debt Cleared Up," Says Wizard

Thomas A. Edison has bought his allotment of 1919 War Savings Stamps—$1,000 worth. That is all the government will let Edison or anyone else buy because War Savings Stamps are too good an investment to let men of large fortune corner them.

Edison bought the maximum of Stamps when he heard that his employees were planning to conduct a Stamp-selling campaign in his laboratories and factories.

"Prosperity is on the way as soon as we clear up the war debts," said the wizard, "and the individual will get his share of that prosperity in proportion to his willingness to work for it."

"Thrift has always appealed to me as an avenue to success. The government needs thrift and the individual needs it. That is the reason I subscribed at once for the full limit of War Savings Stamps. The money will help the government."

"I hope my young men will see that in helping the government through the purchase of Stamps they are also helping themselves toward individual success and prosperity by establishing the habit of thrift. A great many of my young men in the factories here are in the habit of looking to me for an example, so I subscribed early for War Savings Stamps in order to get them started as soon as possible on the right road."

Nothing but the shooting is over. We haven't paid for the job the lads did over there.
