WAGES AND SALARIES

Wages have been advancing, but salaries have not. Therefore the pessimists think that all the salaried class will desert to the wage ranks and nobody will ever fit himself by college education or careful training for any more earning power.

It is a problem, of course. All the salaried people know it. But all is not lost. Money is almost everything, but not quite. There are still the little matters of pride, of preference, of tendencies inherited from long lines of ancestors who believed in education and fought and starved to get it for themselves and their children.

Furthermore, this very doctrine of education is steadily permeating the ranks of labor. There are trade and vocational schools. The factory which pays six dollars a day has an educational department. School standards are getting higher. The school age is being steadily advanced. Never before in our history has there been such an awakening.

What is really happening is that people are coming together, not on a lower plane but on a higher one. Salaried people are learning from labor some common-sense truths about the relation between bread and pay. Labor is absorbing from people of education ideas about the value of education and idealism in everyday life. And both are learning that salaries and wages mean exactly the same thing—a fair day's pay for a fair day's work.

John Bone of Salt Ste. Marie thinks the bone-dry bill was so named because of his activities in getting it passed. He had better not brag too much. There are a lot of sad dogs who might want to bury him.

THE DEBS SENTENCE

The socialists, in America and elsewhere, are seizing upon the Debs decision in the United States supreme court as a proof of persecution. Debs is being sent to the penitentiary, they argue, because he is a socialist. They maintain that the government is trying to "crucify" the socialist party and the socialist movement.

This stand is precisely what might have been expected of most of the socialist leaders, in view of their attitude throughout the war. And it is just as illogical and absurd as their previous utterances have been.

Debs, of course, was not tried as a socialist at all. He was tried as an American citizen for violating the espionage act by making speeches interfering with the recruiting of soldiers to defend the United States against German aggression. A republican or a democrat or a citizen acknowledging no party affiliation would have been condemned likewise if he had said the same things, with the same object in view. In fact, many men not designated as socialists have been condemned under that same act.

In a way, however, it may be said that the socialists are right about it—they have a glimmering of the truth. This verdict against Debs is indeed a verdict against the socialist party of the United States, not because the government so intended it, but because the conduct of the socialists themselves makes it so.

They may well be sensitive about the matter, because their party as a whole has been pretty thoroughly tarred with the same stick. It is they themselves who have caused the very word socialism, once held in respect, to be associated with disloyalty and treason. If they, therefore, choose to feel any personal or party grievance over this righteous verdict, all the worse for them.

As to the socialists who are loyal Americans, and who have therefore mostly left the socialist party, they are not making any complaint.

Secretary Here—F. M. Brown, secretary of the state game warden, was transacting business here today.

GLASS SLAPS CARPERS AND LOAN CRITICS

Americans Who Join Croakers and Quibblers Not Worthy of Name.

Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass hit out straight from the shoulder today at those "Americans" who, now that the guns are cooling, are unwilling to pay for American victory. He said:

"The coming issue of government bonds has been designated the victory liberty loan and it seems to me it might well be termed the thanksgiving loan, for if ever a people had cause for thanksgiving we are that people."

Could Stand It.

"Consider if the war had lasted another year what would have been our state. Instead of sixty thousand dead we likely would have had hundreds of thousands. In time we might have equaled the record of France, with her two million slain. And yet some of us grumble because the government must spend further money to maintain the comfort and bring home in safety those boys whose lives were spared."

"Congress is writing off the books fifteen billions of dollars, expenditure of which had been authorized and which would have had to be expended, with billions of other dollars, had the war gone on another year. We all are glad, of course, that it is not so. But had it been necessary the spending of them still would not have brought the nation down to ruin."

"We still would have been far behind France in the amount of our debt, compared to wealth and population. With our man-power practically intact, with our towns and factories and farms undamaged, should we be cowed by a monetary obligation lighter far than the one France faces unflinched?"

"Those Americans who today have joined the carpers and the quibblers are not worthy of the name. They are not worthy the boys they sent forth to make, if need be, the supreme sacrifice that liberty might live."

Dollars and Cents.

"It is incomprehensible to me that any of the men who gave their sons so gladly and so proudly to their country in its hour of peril should turn so quickly to cold and calculating contemplation of the dollar. Had the war gone on they would, with equal pride, have offered other sons and would have continued to give of their wealth ungrudgingly. Now that the coming of peace has restored their sons to them, will they tighten up their purse-strings and adopt an attitude which would seem to say: 'Let the government go hang?'"

"I think the number of croakers relatively is very small, but their wallings and lamentations travel far and tend to discourage others who are not stout of heart."

Plain Patriots.

"I do not believe that the plain people of America either are fearful of the future or distrustful of their government. When the next loan is offered I have every confidence they will understand its necessity and will gladly meet its requirements."

"Plain fathers and mothers throughout the land have not so soon ceased to be thankful that the ending of the war has restored their sons to them."

Watch Our Neighbor!

Australia has made war bond buying compulsory. Every one of the British countries is still buying, and France—France with her industries laid waste, her farms devastated, her land shell blown, and her homes destroyed—France is buying short term bonds at decreased rate of interest in small amounts but great numbers.

The Hopper

of a concrete mixer has a good appetite and a great capacity at the top.

But all that goes into it must pass easily through the narrow outlet at the bottom. If the man on the job goes away and leaves the mixture to harden in the hopper—he gets fired—that's all.

And the machine is put out of working order for a time. It's easy for you to satisfy your appetite with food. But if you neglect yourself, and the food waste dries out, hardens and stagnates in your lower bowel—if you become constipated—your body machinery will suffer; and if you try to get rid of the mass by taking castor oil, pills, salts, mineral waters, etc., to force the bowels to move, you will only make matters worse.

You can't fire yourself for neglect. And you can't cure constipation by forming the habit of taking medicine every time you want your bowels to move. But you can overcome the trouble by taking Nujol.

Nujol brings about the habit of easy, thorough bowel evacuation at regular intervals, because Nujol is not a drug, does not act like any drug. Nujol brings about a return to Nature's methods by supplying necessary lubrication of the bowel contents, by facilitating intestinal muscular action, by absorbing poisonous matter, and thus securing necessary cleansing of the intestinal canal.

Nujol makes you regular as clockwork—use it, and you'll not have to worry about the size of your appetite or the ability of your body machine to get rid of dangerous food waste.

Get a bottle of Nujol from your druggist today, and send for free booklet "Thirty Feet of Danger."

Warning: Nujol is sold only in sealed bottles bearing the Nujol Trade Mark. At all druggists. Insist on Nujol. You may suffer from substitutes.
