RED CROSS ASKS FOR USED CLOTHES

Drive to Aid Suffering People of Devastated Europe to Start March 24th

The Red Cross will make another collection of used and surplus clothing during the week beginning March 24, 1919.

Months ago, Henry P. Davidson, chairman of the Red Cross war council, cabled from Europe that the cessation of hostilities would find the world face to face with a picture of misery such as had never before been seen in the history of mankind. The veil that hid this picture from us has now been lifted and we know that millions of people must depend for some months to come upon food and clothing from America. If we fail them, they will perish by thousands.

The two former collections of used clothing were made by the Red Cross for the Belgian relief commission for the French and Belgians behind the German lines. This collection is wholly under Red Cross auspices, and is for all the distressed peoples of Europe, except the Central Powers.

Most of the refugees families manage to nourish themselves on the government allowance and their small wages, but they are by no means able to clothe themselves. As the present prices of clothing in France are prohibitive, the need for this kind of assistance is obvious.

It is estimated that the German invasion of France and Belgium made wanderers of 1,250,000 formerly happy country people of these countries.

Returned refugees are living in cellars of wrecked homes. The children wear old blankets and the parents work and sleep in a ragged patchwork of costumes.

One mother says: "We would not mind if only we had a few clothes to keep us warm while we work. My boy has not left the fire for three days. It's so cold outside and he has nothing but a blanket to put around him."

Of food they have a little, but of clothes they have practically none. C. H. Burggraf has been appointed chairman for Linn county.

Waters With Business Instincts.

At the outset of his imperial career the grandfather of the former German kaiser, Frederick William, owed his accumulation of money to his commercial dealings. One of his commercial undertakings was to start milk-rounds, which did exceedingly well, in spite of being carried on suit roads, for the German courtiers found that the imperial favor was dependent upon their patronizing the imperial dairy. In this way the old emperor created a huge milk monopoly in various cities, and reaped a correspondingly large profit. Kaiser Wilhelm himself had been commercial instincts, and had a finger in most of the big German undertakings. In Germany it was currently reported that Balfin was merely the figure-head of the North German Lloyd line of steamships, and that the kaiser was the real man at the helm, and the same thing was said of many other money-making concerns.
