WHAT IS SPRING WITHOUT FESTIVE YOUNG ONION?

A spring without an onion would be as desolate as the old swimming hole without the boys, says today's bulletin from the National War Garden Commission of Washington. Spring onions are not only a tonic but an aid to digestion and the system craves them when the weather begins to warm up. They are easily grown.

Onions may be grown from either sets or seeds, but sets are best because they are easier handled. Use 'bottom' sets, those that were grown last year from seed. A quart of medium size sets will plant about 100 feet of row. Plant them 2 or 3 inches apart in rows 15 or more inches apart, and give frequent shallow cultivation. They will soon be large enough for green onions. Those not pulled for green onions will grow into large bulbs by fall and may be stored for winter. A free garden book will be sent to any reader of this paper who writes to the National War Garden Commission, Washington. Enclose 2-cent stamp for postage. Or better still, go to Murphy's Seed Store, where a copy can be secured free of charge.

Large onions may be grown from seed if given special care. Plant the seeds in the garden half an inch deep, using one ounce to 100 feet of row. Plant the seeds about 2 weeks later than the sets. These grow slowly, and require lots of work to keep them free of weeds. They should be thinned to about three inches apart. The thinned plants may be set in other rows and handled like those transplanted from the seed box. With good cultivation these plants will grow into big onions by fall. —Adv.

They're making a "Hit" with the Returning Fighters

THE MEN that are coming home say a lot for the new waist-seam models. They like the way they fit, the snugness at the waist, the convenient pockets, vertical and slash. They like the distinctive air these models give. We're showing you here one of the best—paneled back, with four rows of stitching around the waist. The pockets, too, are individual—note how they're brought up to the waist-seam. This is only one of the many good ones by—

Maxwell—a car improved each day

More miles per gallon
More miles on tires

THERE is nothing like doing one thing year after year because it always results in doing the thing well.

This is the underlying thought in every Maxwell.

It is why 300,000 Maxwells have been built on the original chassis plan. Each day this car grows better. Each day it is improved somewhere.

There never has been a radical change in design. There never has been a departure from the original idea.

Still there have been more than 1000 improvements made in this car since the first one was built.

Every time a chance was seen to make it better the improvement was made.

That's why a Maxwell runs on and on in almost endless mileage; why it grows better as it grows older; why it stands the moods of the careless driver.

No one has ever criticized the Maxwell on the grounds of reliability.

No one can criticize it on the grounds of good looks.

For there have been 24 recent improvements in its appearance.

See the Maxwell today and then get your check book ready.
