

Your liking for the LIBERTY will be almost immediate. You begin to realize at once that you are driving an unusual car.

The difference in the way it rides and drives is instantly recognizable—and delightful.

And it is a difference so marked that it can spell only one thing—SUPERIORITY.

This recognition of superiority becomes steadily more intense with the intimate experience of ownership. There is probably no other car which is regarded by its owners with such a notable degree of whole-hearted friendliness.

NORMA TALMADGE

AND THE FORD

While filming scenes in her latest Select picture, "Her Only Way," in which she is presented by Joseph M. Schenck, Norma Talmadge for the first time in her life drove a Ford. It was on location, however, for in real life Miss Talmadge drives a Rolls-Royce, the accepted vehicle for stars.

Director Franklin had decided that the scenes of her new picture should show the famous Detroit make of car, so Miss Talmadge and Eugene O'Brien, her leading man, drove out to Greenwich in the Rolls-Royce—the Ford following under the guidance of the studio property man. After some time spent in initiating Miss Talmadge into the intricacies of the Ford she was able to handle the famous Tin Lizzie successfully and the scenes were shot. The spectacle of one of filmdom's queens making small-town love in a Ford car should be a novelty on the screen, to say the least. "Her Only Way" is the attraction at the Globe Theatre Thursday-Friday.

Find shells in English Gardens.

Talking of raids, the task of the suburban gardener is likely to provide a little supplementary excitement during the next few seasons. While digging in his garden the other day a resident of Manor Park unearthed a load of shells. During 1917 and the first few months of last year an enormous quantity of ammunition was fired by the barrage guns in the London district. An uncertain proportion of this consisted of "duds," which, when they did no material damage, were buried a few feet in the earth. It is a crop which will need careful harvesting.—London Chronicle.

One by One They Go.

Another of New York's famous restaurants will put up its shutters and go out of business the end of this month. It is Mouquin's restaurant, for two decades one of the best known eating places in the old Tenderloin district. "Mon dieu," sadly remarked the proprietor yesterday; "life is just one d—d funeral announcement after another." The picturesque old wooden structure on Sixth avenue, near Twenty-eighth street, which is one of New York's oldest landmarks, will be razed for a skyscraper. It was built more than one hundred years ago by Isaac Varian and stood in the center of Varian farm, whose rambling fields and pastures stretched west to the river and to the east as far as Lexington avenue. Through this pastoral landscape wound a couple of cow-paths. These paths are there yet. One is known as Broadway and the other as Sixth avenue. When Isaac Varian died the farm was sold. A public road was cut through the place and it passed directly in front of the old house. A line of stage coaches operated over this road, and what is now Mouquin's restaurant used to be the first stop after leaving Bowling Green.

Tungsten Ores.

The production of tungsten ores in the United States in 1918, according to preliminary statistics collected by Frank L. Hess of the geological survey, was equivalent to 5,065 net tons of concentrates, carrying 90 per cent tungsten trioxide, of which 5,015 tons, valued at $5,150,300, were marketed or consumed by the producers, and 50 tons were reported as left on hand at the mines December 31. The output was less than that of the two previous years—1916, with 5,923 tons, valued at $12,075,400, and 1917, with 6,144 tons, valued at $6,783,400. The production in 1917 was the largest made by any country, although it was much smaller than the combined output of the British empire.
