Immigration Statistics.
Between 1790 and 1890 the estimated number of immigrants was 3,000,000, while the increase in population from other sources was 5,322,254; 1890-91, immigrants 604,125, others 3,002,508; 1891-92, immigrants 1,814,257, others 4,008,106; 1892-93, immigrants 2,208,214, others 5,053,231; 1893-94, immigrants 2,818,824, others 4,794,228; 1894-95, immigrants 2,812,191, others 5,285,221; 1895-96, immigrants 5,340,016, others 7,290,851; 1896-97, immigrants 3,444,420, others 5,527,505; 1897-98, immigrants 3,809,504, others 1,171,498. Until 1890 all alien passengers entering the United States were classified as immigrants, hence the figures until this date do not take into account travelers and are in consequence inaccurate.

COMBAT WITH THEIR HEADS

Giraffes Have Distinctly Peculiar Method of Settling Differences That Arise Among Themselves.

While the giraffe can hardly be classed among the fierce duellists of the animal world, yet animals of this species are known to have their combats like their more ferocious fellows. The long-necked beast has an original and curious method of fighting. It has neither claws nor beak nor sharp teeth with which to defend or attack, so when it is out of temper with one of its kind it does not fly in the face of its adversary as a rhinoceros might, or tear it, as a tiger would. On the contrary, the giraffe, knowing that it has been provided by nature with a long and pliable neck, terminating in a very solid head, uses the upper part of itself like a flail, and, swinging its neck around and around in a way that does immense credit to its organization, brings its head down at each swing with a thump on its antagonist. The other combatant uses precisely the same tactics, and the two animals, planting themselves as firmly as possible by stretching out on all four legs to the utmost, stand opposite to each other hammering away with their heads until one or the other has had enough.

The head of the giraffe is furnished with two stumpy, hornlike processes, so that the animals when at this hammer-and-tongs mode of warfare, remind the spectator somewhat of two ancient warriors thumping each other with the spiked balls they used to carry for that purpose at the end of a chain.—New York Herald.

WROTE OF LIFE AT HARVARD

Author Now Forgotten Conceded to Have Been the First to Depict Undergraduate Days.

Harvard graduates, the world over, have long believed that the earliest pictorial record of undergraduate life at the oldest college in the United States was made when F. G. Attwood drew his pictures of college life for the first volume of the Harvard Lampoon. The Lampoon was the forerunner of humorous journalism in America; Attwood became a famous humorist; and his "Manners & Customs of the Harvard Students" was established as a classic. The discovery of a time-stained book in a New England farm-house reveals an earlier draftsman, whose "College Scenes" antedate "Ye Harvard Students" by about a quarter of a century, but were soon generally forgotten. Of N. Hayward, the artist, no record remains but the bare fact that he was then in college. The discoverer, however, had a rare afternoon when he found the volume in a dusty chest, where it had been packed away with a lot of contemporary textbooks and an old Harvard diploma.—Christian Science Monitor.

Historic Strasbourg.
In establishing the importance of the restored province of Alsace-Lorraine in the city of Strasbourg, the people of France have regained a richly historic ground, says the Boston Transcript. Its cathedral, whose building engaged the services of famous architects and decorators for the period of four centuries before reaching the completion in which it stands today, is one of the marvels of the world. Its great university has a library of a million volumes and before the war its students numbered more than 2,000.

These are the local glories, but a universal fame has been gained by the products of its more intimate talent. Thus, Alsatian wine has had world-wide recognition since the middle ages; Strasbourg beer, was known before America was discovered, and for that delicacy so prized by the fastidious taste of gourmets, the pater familias, the name of Strasbourg is the certificate of extreme excellence.

Improved Oil-Burner.
A new oil-burner from Cairo, Egypt, is attachable by a special range to the grate door, and it neither requires alteration of the solid fuel stove nor prevents the use of solid fuel. The nozzle projects about an inch into the grate, the oil tank being mounted on a suitable rack outside the stove. A small fire heats the fuel oil to about 180 degrees Fahrenheit, and as the oil passes from the nozzle, a jet of compressed air or steam converts it into a spray that burns with a continuous smokeless and odorless flame. In Cairo, it is noted, compressed air is supplied in pipes to houses.

MISFITS --- HIS COLUMN

—BY F. P. NUTTING

Timely Comments and Gleanings of News from Here, There and Everywhere by a Former Editor of the Democrat

Portland, June 11.—The Rose Festival is here with its roses, parades, flying machines and sideshows. The hotels are packed to the garrets and the eating houses are full, with places up for the occasion, among some.

I met Miss Galloway, formerly of the Albany high school, recently. One of the school's most popular teachers, her many friends will be interested in knowing of her excellent progress as a medical student.

Tom Alexander and Misfits ride on the same streetcar line and frequently happen to be in the same car. He has a linotype shop at 2nd and Alder. Ed Rookledge, also formerly of Albany, works for him.

An oldtime Albany man met recently, while passing thru the city, was Collins Elkins, who was accompanied by Mrs. Elkins and daughter. Mr. Elkins was formerly with the Blain Clothing Co. at Albany, going from there to Princeton, where he built up a large mercantile business, retiring a few weeks ago with a competence.

In the Imperial a few days ago was Carl Luderman, a former clerk in S. E. Young's store. He has been a sho-salesman for many years, doing a large business for his house.

A street visit was had with Mrs. Myrtle McBride Roberts, formerly of Albany. She has the distinction of being one of the youngest grandmothers in the state, which she has been for several years.

At the ball game last Saturday I had as a seatmate Victor Galbraith and son. Vic has been in one of the shipyards for over a year. Elsewhere in the bleachers were two of his brothers, Frank and Jode. Ball players when boys, they are now good fans.

Charles Lamb is home from France with the title of sergeant. He made a good record. A brother is secretary to Collector Miller. Charles brought back some interesting relics of the great war, among them an Iron Cross.

Albany people will be interested in a social event, the marriage of Miss Eda Pattersons, a fine girl, and Harold Basley, who is highly spoken of, Thursday evening of this week. Miss Alma Beckley, another former Albany girl, recently had a shower in honor of the prospective bride.
