Santiam News

SCIO, July 9.—Special.—Lyle Moore and his bride were entertained by a lively charivari crowd a few evenings ago.

A few from this neighborhood spent the Fourth at Albany. Many went to Cascade, which seems now to be the main attraction of the tourists, judging by the camp-equipped cars which go by.

Roy R. Reynolds has been laid up for a week with boils and carbuncles, but is able to be out and at his haying now.

Haying is the principal occupation around here now. Much of the wild hay is in the barn, and chest is being cut.

Mrs. Moore is visiting her son, W. H. Moore, at the present time.

Neal Loftin has the grade all ready for the gravel now for the road improvement between the Fairview Schoolhouse and McDowell Creek bridge.

D. E. Strickler has purchased the old Ott Krieger farm and will move on to it this fall.

Judd Gray is visiting his father after about two years service overseas.

The crop prospects would have been greatly improved had a soaking rain come about a week ago.

Jackrabbits are getting to be quite a pest here and will soon be quite destructive if not kept down.
