Kennedys to Return—

"California is pretty good, but give me old Oregon," writes J. F. Kennedy, who with his family has been spending the last month in the sunny south. Mr. Kennedy states that they are leaving Monterey and will arrive home in about a week. Went to Newport—Miss Mable Trask left yesterday for Newport for a two weeks outing.

Go to Brownsville—

Riley Waller and W. E. Venable went to Brownsville this morning to work for a few days assisting in fixing up the telephone lines and putting in a temporary switchboard so as to enable the Brownsville people to have telephone service. The service there is owned by a mutual company.

Spend Weekend—

Miss (Jadya) Leech spent the weekend in Eugene visiting her parents.

HER FIRST COFFEE CAKES

Wifey Didn't Know Much About Cooking, but Would Try Anything to Please Hubby.

The little bride was having her first adventures in the culinary line and it was hard, as she had never been taught the art of cooking. The young husband remarked one day how fond he was of coffee cake, the kind his mother used to make, all fat with raisins and spice and all things nice. After his departure for the office, the little bride looked through the recipe. It looked easy; you took one cake of yeast, a pint of boiled milk, so much butter, sugar, etc. She decided on a surprise for hubby at dinner that night. The recipe, like many others, was not definite; it left something for older, wiser heads to know—for instance, that the yeast germ is killed if put in hot milk, and if it did not say to cool before adding the yeast.

Therefore she mixed the ingredients all at once. Throughout the day she watched it. Each time she looked a stifled moan greeted her eyes. It had not risen any that she could see and would not be ready for the evening meal. She could, however, tell the young husband of her good intentions. He was vitally interested and suggested to wifey baking it later, and having it with the morning coffee. A neighbor, taken into consultation, thought perhaps it had been chilled, and suggested placing the bowl in hot water, which was done.

Together, the young couple watched it, but the stubborn disposition was still with it. At twelve o'clock the young husband lost patience and retired, with the remark, "If it were mine, I would throw the darned thing in the garbage can." Not so the little bride; she had been reading too much of waste and conservation, so she stayed up, sleepy though she was, until 1 a. m., when she placed it in the oven, hoping against hope that the baking would bring out its good qualities. At breakfast the coffee cake was served. They tried to slice it, they tried to hack it, but alas, all the tragedies of today are not in the treacherous—Indianapolis News.
