Emphatically Stated.

The biggest problem facing the Japanese studying English in his flowery home is finding some one to practice his oral English on. One might say he is up against it for laboratory facilities.

But, says F. F. S., who has just come from Japan, the students are eager to seize every opportunity. Miss Mann, an American, was walking along the main street in Nishio one day when she was approached shyly by a native student, who said:

"Please may I speak English with you?"

"Be brief—what is it?" the lady replied.

For a minute the student swayed back and forth in his agony of phrasing a foreign sentence, and then he exclaimed:

"Verily, verily, I say unto you, it is a warm day!"—Kansas City Star.

How France is Being Helped.

Farm labor problems in France are being taken up seriously by the American committee for devastated France, which has communicated the plan of its work to the department of labor. The committee's aim is to increase the productivity of French farms as much as possible and to make France as nearly self-supporting as it can, so that the produce from American farms can be supplemented by grain and other foodstuffs grown at home.

FIRST CALL WAS FOR SOAP

Nothing Germans at Coblenz Would
Not Do for That Article—
Pepper Came Next.

German supplies were getting rather short when the American army of occupation moved across the Rhine at Coblenz. The population was eating a tough black bread which was nothing more than a bran mash, wearing paper clothes, and going virtually unwashed, as they had no soap.

There is almost nothing the Germans won't do for a piece of American soap. The washwomen will darn impossible holes in the doughboy's socks, mend his trousers, scrub his leggings, and would stand guard in his place if assured they will be rewarded with a portion of this delicacy. Soap takes the preference over cigarettes, chocolates or chewing gum.

The Germans have an imitation soap they provide for the populace. It looks like soap and makes a rich-appearing lather, but it isn't soap. It doesn't do the work. You might as well try to shave with the foam from their had-tasting beer as that soap. Having no oil or fats in it, it is plain camouflage.

Another thing the Germans are shy on is pepper. A person who has always had pepper might give it little thought and it probably would be the last thing included in an "iron ration," but go without pepper three years and you'll begin to think that it is the staff of life.

Soap and pepper are to the Germans what pie and ice cream and going home are to the American doughboys.

Judge Robert S. Lovell

President of the Union Pacific R. R. Co., said, "My judgment is against the consolidation of all the railroads of the country into a few companies, because I believe the companies will be too large and unwieldy for efficient and economical management."

This logic is sound and applies to retail stores as well as railroads. The efficient one-man store undersells the large stores with complicated buying and auditing systems. See yesterday's papers for proof.
