Harden for Ambassador
It is reported that the next German ambassador to the United States, who will be appointed when the Senate has ratified the peace treaty, may be Maximilian Harden. Most newspaper readers know something of this remarkable man. He is perhaps the most often quoted of German publicists. His magazine, Die Zukunft (The Future) has long borne a reputation for fearlessness in dependence.

Harden is said to be a Jew. His writings, strangely eloquent and picturesque, are strongly reminiscent of the old Hebrew prophets. He is by instinct a preacher, speaking in parable, with his meaning often veiled or vague. When it suits his purpose, however, he is as blunt as Lloyd George or as clear and logical as Clemenceau.

Harden won fame, years ago, by exposing the moral corruption of the favorite court group surrounding Kaiser Wilhelm. He has many a time defied the Kaiser, and has made no secret of the fact that he regards Wilhelm as a charlatan and a strutting bluffer. During the war he was the only journalist in Germany who told his countrymen the truth about the war, revealing the original purposes of the prussian military ring American, the credit due them for honesty of purpose and superior idealism.

Since the armistice he has spoken still more freely, trying to convince his fellow-Germans of the nation's guilt and the necessity of paying the penalty, learning the lesson and building more wisely hereafter. He has not hesitated to condemn the old for its brutality, materialism and bad faith.

No other man in Germany could be more acceptable to the American people. He is so strangely in sympathy with American ideals that he seems more American than German. He seeks none the less to serve his own country. It is almost too much to hope that the German government will be wise enough to send him.

Protecting Baggage
When you start on that vacation trip, be sure to give your share toward protecting your baggage. This is the season when motor tourists send boxes and trunks and parcels ahead of them to mountain or shore or lake resort. It is also a season when hundreds of pieces of baggage go astray or are badly damaged.

When accident to baggage is due to carelessness on the part of railroad employes, suitable reparation is possible. But there is no excuse for making the task of the baggage man or the parcel post clerk any harder or more complex than necessary.

It is reported by an official of an important express company that an amazing number of packages are neither properly wrapped nor properly tagged. He advises that tags should never be used if it is possible to put the necessary marks directly on the package, either writing them on or mailing or pasting them down permanently. When tags must be used they should be the kind not easily torn, and they should be attached with wire or particularly strong cord. Old marks should be effaced to avoid confusion. And of course, all marks and tags should be complete, accurate and entirely legible.

A very little care on the part of the sender would mean a very large saving of delay, disappointment and loss.

NO ACCIDENT WEEK MAKES GOOD RECORD

The U. S. railroad administration for the 63 railroads of the Northwest issues today another weekly bulletin showing what can be accomplished in one week by cooperation and special caution of employes. To fellow-employees the management has this to say:

"During No-Accident Week we have demonstrated conclusively that we can operate railroads without killing or maiming ourselves or our co-workers. Of the 63 railroads in the Northwest, 50 went through the week with a clear record. The other 13 railroads had 119 reportable accidents to employes. On these 63 roads during the corresponding week last year six employes were killed and 475 injured. By working carefully, exercising caution and following safety first principles we have saved 372 persons from death and injury in this region.

"The reduction in casualties per 100 employes in the region being 77.8 per cent, the employes of the local yards and offices of Albany are on the job to make 100 per cent in efficiency and are entitled to great credit and the support of all classes of citizens to assist. The same degree of care and caution to automobile drivers on the streets and highways should be observed at all times in the opinion of many thoughtful citizens."

MAZOLA

The Perfect oil for Cooking and Salads.

How To Make Perfect Pie Crust

Here is a Pie Crust recipe that will convince you of the wonders of Mazola. And remember, too, that pie crust made with Mazola is perfectly digestible.

Follow this recipe—you can get Mazola at your grocer's.

2 cups Flour Pinch of Salt
1/2 cup Mazola Ice Cold Water

Work Mazola well into the flour and salt, add enough ice water to hold together, about one-fourth of a cup; roll crust out at once.
