RATIFY THE TREATY WITHOUT RESERVATIONS

For nearly five years we have been facing such stupendous issues that the average man and woman in our country does not realize the magnitude of the crisis which is nearly upon us. Will we not the Senate, immediately on receipt, ratify the Peace Treaty, which not only includes but is actually built upon the League of Nations? This sounds like a simple question, but the progress, even the maintenance, of our civilization depends upon the answer.

By this time it must be evident to every thinking person that the Covenant of the League of Nations cannot be torn out of the Peace Treaty; and it must soon be realized, even by those whose eyes are temporarily blinded by political antagonisms, that an attempt to amend the Covenant at this juncture is fraught with danger, since the condition of many countries, as a result of hunger and of general war upheaval, is so unstable that revolution may break out at almost any moment if peace between the nations is not at once established.

The making now of reservations is dangerous to the establishment of the League, because if the United States either repudiates or stipulates for special interpretations of certain articles of the Covenant, other nations will naturally wish to do the same, with the result that this great Magna Charta may become derelict and ineffective, if it can be established at all.

Surely even though not perfect, the Covenant represents a wonderful step forward in the life of the world. Therefore let us make sure that the United States does her part by joining the League of Nations at the earliest possible moment. To this end let every man and woman write to our Senators at Washington, urging them to ratify the Peace Treaty including the Covenant, without amendments or reservations.

AMERICAN SOVEREIGNTY AND MONROE DOCTRINE

The Monroe Doctrine, as originally announced, served as a shield, which the United States held over itself and over weaker states on the American continent as a protection against European interference and European encroachment. It was and is a national policy which protects North and South America and makes for peace on these continents.

There is real danger now, however, that the Monroe Doctrine will be carried so far and with so high a hand that the real value of the policy will be lost.

Senator Knox made the following amazing statement in his recent speech in the Senate: "Its (The Monroe Doctrine) precise character, the extent, method and time of its application, the means of compelling its observance, all are matters of our high and uncontrolled will and sovereign prerogative. We, the United States, cannot answer to any one else in respect to it. We use it when, as, and to the extent we need it. There can be no limitation upon it, except our requirements, our will, and our force of arms. Whatever security we may need within its purview, it must give it we ask it."

That sounds like Trietschke. It is an announcement of unlimited will, backed by arms, to be exercised as the United States alone determines her own requirements to be. Such an immoderate statement of the Monroe Doctrine weakens and does not strengthen it. It is an extreme statement of the doctrine, calculated to cause trouble and friction on the American continent. The Doctrine so stated is not unlike the doctrine which Germany sought to apply to Europe.

Senator Knox would refuse to submit to conciliation any dispute growing out of the application of the Monroe Doctrine, whether such dispute were between the United States and an American state or between the United States and a non-American state. On the American continent the arbitrary will of the United States backed by force is to prevail. The other nations agree in the Covenant of the League of Nations, to submit to conciliation all non-justiciable disputes; that is, those which grow out of questions of policy. Is the United States to demand that she alone be relieved from such obligation and on the ground that, when her interests are involved, her absolute will shall prevail? How does this differ from the German position in Europe?

The fact is that the Monroe Doctrine now that it has been recognized in the Covenant of the League of Nations is adequately protected.

It is such pronouncements as that of Senator Knox and not the wise provision in the Covenant of the League of Nations which threaten the usefulness of the Monroe Doctrine.

Wiping Out Predatory Animals.

During 1918 hunters of the United States department of agriculture killed 83 gray wolves in New Mexico, 34 mountain lions, 15 stock-destroying bears, 1,800 coyotes, and 350 bobcats, we are told. These animals were killed at a total expense of $24,800, and the saving effected by their destruction, on the basis commonly accepted by stockmen, amounts to $215,000 annually. Hunting during the spring period destroys many young, and thus prevents increase. Many coyotes not accounted for in the figures given were destroyed by poison. The killing of these animals marks a long stride in extermination of gray wolves and other predatory animals, and the saving is cumulative for years to come.

Pass the Salt!

Two reporters were boasting of the speed of their shorthand writing.

"Whenever I am reporting at a meeting to get near to my table."

"Why?" asked the other.

"Because," said the pen pusher, "my hand goes so fast that it creates a current of air like a fan."

"A mere nothing," said number two. "I always have to report on wet paper, or else the current of air caused by the movement of my hand would blow it away. Besides the paper has to be wetted every few minutes, because the friction caused by the rapid movements of my arm would set fire to it in no time."

writer George E. White in the American Review of Reviews.

The Stavril knew that they were of Christian ancestry, but in some hour of persecution their fathers had yielded assent to Islam. The same build was said to serve as mosques above ground and churches below; the same men as imams by day and priests by night; the same boys were said to be circumcised and baptised; and named both Osman and Constantine.

A few years ago these Stavril determined to throw off the mask and return to their Christian allegiance, and they did so, though at the cost of much government pressure lasting for years. With some of them I became personally acquainted when they were exiled from home. One day a Stavril met a Turkish friend, and the latter remarked, "I hear you've turned Christian." The Greek answered that they had always known that their ancestors were Christian Orthodox and they had decided to avow their original heritage. "But," said the Moslem, "you've been to mosque all these years, and we've said our prayers side by side; how did you think you could deceive God all the time?"

"I never tried to deceive God," was the answer. "He always knew just what I was. I tried to deceive you, and in that I succeeded."
