The Versatile Airplane
Airplanes are now selling for as low as $3,000, and an advertising catalog available to all prospective purchaser makes them very attractive, regardless of price.

To begin with, there are the lists of airplane activities already engaged in, of which a good many people are still more or less ignorant. According to one catalog airplanes are now being used for taxi service, for commuting, for aerial express, for entertainment of guests at hotel and summer resorts, for carrying mail, for quick delivery of merchandise, for delivering delayed documents and for delivering mail at sea.

There are countless other delivering lines, including everything from fish, pay-rolls and movie films to furs and newspaper reporters and prisoners. Then there is the splendid work of forest patrol, boundary patrol and life guard service. Astronomical observation; railroad, oilfield, wheat-field, fire, real estate, railway and other surveys, as well as aerial photography, have all discovered new possibilities in recent airplane development.

These are the merest beginning. The airplane is now used for herding sheep and cattle, for locating marketable fish for the benefit of fishermen, for civic planning and for plantation travel. It is a queer list, in which aerial preaching, flying circuses, missionary work and polar exploration rank side by side.

A good many of these uses have not yet become common, although a number of them are already well established in England and continental Europe. However, they point the way to a future in which aircraft may do the work of boat and train, beast of burden and automobile, with a few more stunts of their own thrown in for good measure.

Produce!
Level-headed people concerned with the cost of commodities have long been emphasizing the fact that the only sure way to bring down prices and place the necessities of life within the reach of the masses is to concentrate on increased production.

Everybody wants to be able to consume more, and in order to do so there are universal demands for higher pay. Often, strangely enough, those demands are coupled with demands for absurdly short hours. That is to say, the hours asked for are absurd in view of the present situation, though they might be just in normal times.

The New York World ably sums up the situation in a paragraph: "The labor unions that are demanding new wage increases and shorter hours under the pretense of meeting the high cost of living are only making a bad matter worse for themselves and for everybody else. If they are really concerned with reducing the cost of living they must begin to take an interest in the matter of production. This war cannot be liquidated by schemes for doing less work for more pay, and the whole world is bound to be confronted by high prices until some of the loss and waste of war has been replaced."

If there is any panacea at all for existing economic evils, it is increased production. The profiteers, of course, must be curbed. But that is only half the battle, and possibly less than half. There must be less waste, more efficiency, and a new, constructive attitude toward the situation. The motto of every man and woman, of every occupation, should be, "Produce, produce, produce!"

HELPS HUNT TERRORISTS

The work of Dr. Charles E. Munroe, explosives expert in the United States bureau of mines, is expected to be one of the most valuable aids in discovering the bomb terrorists. Once the authorities establish definitely the material used in the bombs, they have a better chance of finding out where they were made.

W. C. BURNS REPORTS NEWPORT EXPERIENCES

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Burns returned from Newport Friday evening where they had been for several days. Mr. Burns reports that he caught plenty of fish for himself and all hungry friends. He and Mrs. Burns made a trip to Waldport and up the Alsea river for some distance but failed to find any fish at this season of the year.

Mr. Burns reports a large number of people from Linn county and the state at large at various places on the coast. One attraction at Newport is a Ford car service run on the new branch lines of the government railroads. A car has been remodeled with car wheels made to run on the regular track. Large numbers of the campers take the Ford line for points out from the bay to the timber belts. The jetty construction work is also being pushed by a good force of workmen and will probably continue for about two years.

WITH THERMOMETER AT CENTURY MARK ALBANY FEELS HEAT

A nice little warm spell descended upon Albany yesterday and the more corpulent of the population panted under the oppressiveness of 100 degrees. This ties the heat record for the year, the thermometer having reached the same mark one day last month. However, a breeze that sprung up in the afternoon while the sun was hottest served to modify the temperature and no one was made unduly uncomfortable. It is predicted that this afternoon will be even warmer. The Willamette river is approaching low water mark, the stage of the river at present being but .7 of a foot above that figure.
