Chicago White Sox Win Uphill Base Ball Battle

Cincinnati Loses in Tenth Inning After Having Game Well in Hand; Reuther is Knocked From Box in Sixth When Score is Tied; Kerr Pitches.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 7.—By the Associated Press.—Cincinnati fans saw their idols humbled today when, with the game safely sewed up by the score of 4 to 0 in the fourth inning, Chicago put one across in the fifth and knocked Reuther out of the box in the sixth, tying the score. The game went for an extra inning, the first of the series when the White Sox put across the winning run. Chicago won the sixth game of the series in an uphill struggle, 5 to 4. Kerr, who blanked the Red Sox in the third game of the series, pitched the full game despite being hit hard, for his teammates were also hitting. Reuther for Cincinnati was knocked out of the box in the sixth with the score four to three in the Reds' favor, no outs and a man on second. Ring replaced Reuther and a timely hit brought in the run that tied the score. In the tenth inning a double and a single enabled Chicago to score the winning run. The Reds started out bravely to tuck the winning game of the series safely away, hitting like fiends and scoring two runs in each of the third and fourth innings. Chicago's playing was rather erratic, three errors being chalked up against them while the Reds played an errorless game. But Kerr kept on pitching and his teammates continued to register an occasional hit until the fifth inning when one run was put across. Then came the sixth when Reuther was touched up for three hits and two runs and Ring went in, only to be slammed for another hit and the needed run. The game continued tight until the 10th when Chicago scored and prevented the series from ending for another day, at least. Cincinnati has won four games and Chicago two. The series will end when one team wins five games. The summary of hits, runs and errors was: Runs Hits Errors White Sox 5 10 3 Reds 4 11 0
