

PRESIDENT WILSON EMPHASIZES NEED OF CONFERENCE TO FINISH ITS WORK

Addresses 600-word Message to Secretary Lane Pointing Out Imperative Necessity of Accomplishing Objects.

SIGNATURE IS SHAKY

President's Message Said to be in Same Vigorous Style Which Marked his Previous Writings

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21—By the Associated Press—President Wilson dictated a letter to Secretary Lane, presiding over the Industrial Conference, to be used if the danger of the conference's breaking up becomes acute. The President signed the note in pencil with a shaky hand.

Declaration of the imperative necessity of holding the National Industrial Conference together until it accomplishes the purposes for which it was called, it understood to form the keynote of the six hundred word letter which President Wilson sent Secretary Lane today.

Those who saw the letter described it as an "extremely powerful document" written in the vigorous style which characterized his writing before his illness.

Some conference leaders said that a week's recess might be taken to give the groups a chance to work out a new program and to reconcile the differences between labor and capital groups. Secretary Lane approves of the proposed step.

TANGENT BEE KING HAS MANY STANDS

W. W. Powell Reaps Good Prophet From Investment; Doubles His Output

W. W. Powell, who is justly entitled to the distinction of being the bee king of Tangent and perhaps Linn county, was an Albany business visitor today. Mr. Powell, who is somewhat on the retired list has taken up the work of raising bees and is having fine success. He now has 148 stands and reports that he has sold $1300 worth of honey this summer and could now sell at the present market price for $400 more than he received. He started with 70 hives last spring so in addition to the honey produced has 78 new stands of bees.

The bee industry is still in its infancy in this country and if taken up on the business way as it is being done in many places the valley would certainly become a land of milk and honey, is the view of the expert bee men of the country. Honey is selling in Portland at present at $8.00 per case of 24 one-pound cokes.

FIRE DEPARTMENT MEMBERS DISBAND

Members of Organization Meet and Disband for Ever

The Albany Volunteer Fire Department is no more. The members of the organization met last night and disbanded and voted to sell all of their furniture, fixtures and clubroom accessories.

Since the organization of the paid department there has been some dissatisfaction among members of the volunteer aggregation. There was the feeling among them that the city council and the city in general did not fully appreciate their services and sacrifices and little inclination was manifested in doing anything for them. It was considered the best solution to the trouble to disband and permit a new organization to start over again.

The members of the paid department purchased the pool table, chairs and some of the other equipment. There are seven paid men included in the 18 who were in good standing in the volunteer organization, and it was an easy matter to take the old items over.

The members of the volunteer department stated that while they did not care to continue their organization, that in case of a fire every man would gladly be on the ground to do his bit. Pay is no consideration with the members.

The officers of the old organization were: John M. French, president; Roy Nutting, secretary and L. B. Hixson, Jr., treasurer.

STEEL MAKES PLEA FOR LINN COUNTY'S SUPPORT IN MAKING CRATER LAKE PARK

Gives Interesting Address at Chamber of Commerce Dinner at Hotel Albany; Indorsement Given.

FORMER ALBANYITE

Boys Conference is Explained by School Superintendent and Committee Named to Help Feed Visitors.

A splendid dinner, a short talk by Uncle Sam Hampton, a little business, and a flowery disclosure on Crater Lake by Will G. Steel, former Albany newspaper man, composed the subjects before the Albany Chamber of Commerce meeting at the Hotel Albany last evening.

Mr. Steel painted a picture of Crater Lake, reviewing his struggles to secure recognition from the government and funds for the improvement of the scenic wonder, and before he was through he had the indorsement of the Chamber for the projected road improvements in the park and the secretary was instructed to write Oregon's delegation in congress asking that this be made a part of Senator McNary's bill.

Mr. Steel was an Albany resident 40 years ago when he was one of the founders of the Albany Herald. He spoke of the old times he knew at that time, C. H. Stewart, W. R. Bilyeu being seated at the same table with him.

Has Early Impressions

Mr. Steel said that his first impression of Crater Lake was gained when he was a boy in school in Kansas 50 years ago. He was eating his lunch, which he carried wrapped up in a newspaper. In that paper he saw an account of the wonder lake which had just been discovered, but the details of it were highly overdrawn. But from that time on he had the desire to come to Oregon and see the lake. He had never seen any mountains before that time.

With three brothers living in Portland, Mr. Steel started westward two years later, finding one man who had years later. For seven years after his arrival he kept up an inquiry about the lake, finding one man who had heard about it. Two years later he found a man who had actually seen it and four years later, in 1885, he organized a party to make a trip there. The start was made from what is now Klamath Falls.

Worked Many Years

His first impressions were even more pronounced than were his mental picture and from that time on he commenced to plan for a national park and for means to protect the lake and surroundings from the encroachments of civilization. Upon his own initiative he later wrote stories for eastern papers, made trips to Washington and finally got government support for carrying out his ideas. It took 17 years until congress, on May 27, 1902 passed the bill incorporating the park. He later got $10,000 for a survey and in 1912 he got a continuing appropriation of $700,000 from congress, about $400,000 of which has already been spent.

The park has recently been enlarged to include the territory 10 miles north including Diamond Lake, Mt. Thielsen and other scenic wonders, and now the problem is to extend roads to connect all of these places to make it the scenic wonder of the world. The park contains 249 square miles and the additional territory will add another 130 square miles.

Has Extensive Plans

Mr. Steel's plans for the development of the park include the making of roads over the mountains across the Santiam Pass, up the McKenzie and other accessible routes from the north to open the park to people on this side of Medford. He urged the Chamber of Commerce to do all possible in getting the government to build the Foster-Bend road and to help in other ways. Senator Cusick made the motion giving this indorsement.
