Exide Battery

STARTING AND LIGHTING

It is made to depend upon. Thirty-one years of nation-wide experience in building storage batteries for every purpose have gone into its designing.

It is the same type of battery that provided undersea power for Uncle Sam's submarines in the war with Germany—the same type of battery that the U. S. Government has long used for its army and navy—the same type of battery that is used in the majority of farm electric lighting plants.

In city, suburb or country the "EXIDE" is the battery that is the choice of the motorist who has tried all batteries. There is an "EXIDE" of proper size and type for every automobile, truck and tractor now in use.

It is the battery that is right—not in one prominent detail, but in every detail. There is an "EXIDE" Service Station near you, (we will send you the address on request) where you can procure the "EXIDE" or where you can get quality "EXIDE" Service for the battery you are now using.

Send for a copy of our folder "Nine Points of Exide."

Don't forget that there is an

OMASK, (By A. P.)—Several thousand cave-dwelling refugees in the outskirts of Omask, facing a Siberian winter only a month or two off, living in a hand-to-mouth fashion with nothing in the way of clothing but the rags in which they stand, constitute a problem for the American Red Cross, practically the only organization to which they can look with any hope of relief. The Associated Press correspondent accompanied Major Charles McDonald and Dr. A. F. Jackson, Red Cross managers, on a tour of inspection today. They were trying to gauge the necessities and match them against their resources already badly strained with relief work among refugees and troops.

The first group of huts visited numbered a hundred and forty, covering perhaps an acre of ground and averaging five persons to a hut. There were other similar settlements in the neighborhood. Most of the huts were mere burrows, sometimes with a little window peeping out close under the clay covered roof. Crude steps led down into the dark interiors which one entered by doubling up like a jack-knife. Stoves contrived out of bricks and stones and scraps of sheet iron, a wide bank or platform which served as sleeping accommodations for the entire family, a table made out of odds and ends and a stool or two constituted the usual furnishings. To be sure there were more pretentious ones here and there with wood sheathing against the clay walls, whitewashed or papered with newspapers, and having board floors; but these were the "bour zhui" among the refugee proletariat.

One cave about eight feet by ten feet had originally housed seven people. To day they were two; the other had died during eighteen months in the settlement. Most of those living in these huts have been refugees since 1915 when they were driven from their homes in Poland and Lithuania by the Russian army during its first advance against the Germans. Many of them had been farmer, prosperous in a small way, or factory workmen or tradesmen. Nearly all of them find employment enough to eke out an existence and the Omask government provides food for those who are not able to work.

The government also has established a hospital in an adjoining barracks; but such a hospital! Tophus and typhoid patients, men and women lay in a row on a long plank platform in a dingy room. There are no separate beds nor beds of any sort, just places to lie down.

The only ray of sunshine in all the gloomy surroundings was furnished by some five hundred children, wards of the Red Cross, studying in school room in the barracks. Five hundred are already receiving assistance from the Red Cross and the Russian authorities report fifteen hundred more for whom assistance is needed.

(If the amount to be raised by special tax is more by six per cent than the amount raised the year immediately preceding, fill out the following blank. Otherwise cross out this part.)

The amount of money to be raised by this special tax is more than the amount raised by special school district tax in the year immediately preceding this, plus six per cent. It is necessary to raise this additional amount by special levy for the following reasons: (Here give reasons in not to exceed one hundred words.)

The reason for increasing the amount of the tax to be raised is found in the increased cost of teachers' salaries, the larger number of teachers necessary to supply the schools and the general and continued increased cost of all items connected with school maintenance and operation.

GOOD BOOK WEEK BEING OBSERVED

Changes at Library Aid Students in Schools; Better Books Are Urged

The American Library Association has designated this week as "Good Book Week" with the view of stimulating the reading of better books by the children and the people in general throughout the entire United States.

The Albany Library, under the efficient management of Mrs. Viola Price Franklin as Librarian and others interested are putting forth special effort to make the library here a greater factor in the lives of the young of our city. "More Books in the Home" is the slogan for the parents and children in buying a supply of good books for the home library.

Parents of Albany who are contemplating buying a good book for a Christmas present will find an abundant supply of sample books at the City Library which will fit the demands of any boy or girl in the grades of the public school. The librarians of the entire county are uniting their efforts at this time in the endeavor to stamp out of existence the light and trashy literature that is on the market and has no value in molding the right character in those who are led to spend valuable time in reading worthless books. "Good Books Well Read form and glorify the Highest Ideas in Human Life," is a quotation from a source that is still worth consideration.

The Albany school board and the directors of the Albany Library have recently entered into an agreement whereby all the library books of the grades of the City schools have been transferred to the city library and will be checked out to the various rooms when needed and charged direct to the teacher for their safe keeping and return to the library. The plan of centralizing the library in this way has been very successfully carried out at Salem and other places and it is hoped that it will be a step in advance for Albany, as the plan fixes the responsibility and care of the books and also encourages a wider use of the books.

At one time several years ago one of the school buildings of the city was practically depleted of its books by virtue of lack of protection. The Albany library is extending its magazine department and binding and tabulating some of the standard magazines for future reference.

Portuguese President Has Very Quiet Day

LISBON, PORTUGAL.—Induction into office of the new president, Dr. Antonio Jose de Almeida, today, was accompanied by an official notice in the newspapers that any attempts at creating public disturbances would be put down with a strong hand.

It is common knowledge that certain republican factions are working against the new president while not openly preaching Bolshevism.

Hundreds of syndicalists marched through the streets yesterday singing the "Internationale" and gave a special performance outside the prisons where their companions were in durable vile. Troops were called out and the streets were cleared and a great number of manifestants arrested.

Bolsheviks. They depended too much on the Allies guidance and assistance.

Upon the departure of the British all civil and military affairs were taken over exclusively by Russians. The first fortnight that they have been thrown on their own resources has demonstrated that in this region they cannot only hold the front but can develop initiative and move forward where necessary.

The conviction is growing that with the arrival of Serbian and Czecho-Slovak troops they will not only be able to defend the Northern district but will be able to give material assistance on other Russian fronts.

NEW MACHINERY

F. S. Stewart, of Kansas City, representing the company, is in the city this week making preparations for placing the machine on display and a force of salesmen and demonstrators will arrive next week to place the article on the market. After it is introduced it will be placed on sale in local electrical stores.
