U. S. MUST ADOPT PACT OF PEACE

Senator Owen Declares Not Only U. S. Business but Good Name at Stake

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 12.—In these days of uncertainty over the shape in which the covenant of the League of Nations, to say nothing of the remainder of the Peace Treaty, will be passed by the Senate the thinking men and women of the nation are beginning to ponder the effects on America if a severe mutilation—such as is being urged by Senator Lodge and others—should prevail.

One of the leading economic and financial authorities of the upper house of Congress is Senator L. Owen of Oklahoma whose name, together with that of Carter Glass, now secretary of the treasury, is attached to the preeminently successful Federal Reserve banking system. This question was put to him by some newspaper men in response to requests from their readers for an authoritative answer:

"What would be the effect, financially and commercially, of a failure of Treaty ratification?"

To which Senator Owen replied, amplifying the query to cover other possibilities, as follows:

"If the Republican leadership should be able to hold over a third of the Senate to destructive reservations the Treaty would be defeated and some very evil consequences might ensue. "First—All damages done by Germany to the United States and to United States citizens in Germany, and at sea and on land, would be unsettled—covering hundreds of millions of dollars.

"Second—Germany would have unsettled claims against the United States for all German citizen property taken by the United States; claims for all German ships, docks, etc., etc., exceeding probably a billion dollars.

"Third—The United States would have no part in reparation and other commissions controlling commerce in and out of Germany, and the United States therefore would be excluded in large part from such future business.

"Fourth—The failure to settle the peace of the world would to the difficulty of financing exports to Europe from the United States and thus paralyze our foreign exports.

"Fifth—Our merchant marine would languish if our export trade should be cut down, and our investment of $3,000,000,000 in ships would lose its great value in large part.

"Sixth—But above all, the United States would impair its high standing of honor and dignity with our great Allies who would resent the distrust shown them and the cowardice and un-intelligent selfishness shown by our scuttling out of Europe and abandoning our Allies in their great labor of restoring Europe to peace and productivity and happiness.

"Our prosperity is bound up with the prosperity of Europe and the world. We can trust the common sense and common honesty of mankind, and if we refuse we may expect the world to distrust and dislike us. Confidence must be based on mutual consent. With the hate of the Teutonic people and allied people, and the suspicion and dislike of the peoples lately associated with us the position of the United States would be deplorable.

"The defeat of the Treaty is unthinkable. Sixty-four senators surely will be found able to agree upon the terms of the ratification."

Too Many Cooks Have Spoiled the Pudding

DEL MONTE, Cal., Nov. 13.—A. P.

—Too many rules have spoiled football, in the opinion of Jim Rodgers, Yale's celebrated tackle in 1897, who recently visited here. His opinion was concurred in by B. L. Thane, quarterback for the California eleven which defeated Stanford in 1898 and Sam Morse, who captained Yale's team in 1906, who were here at the time.

"The trouble is so many rules have been made that opportunities for a variety of plays are limited and the initiative in a player is curtailed," Rodgers said. "When I was playing, we were permitted more latitude and I believe we put on more attractive contests for the spectators."

Two Hundred Would Pull in U. Shell

SEATTLE, Nov. 13.—Over 200 crew aspirants turned out at the University of Washington here in response to Coach Ed Leader's call for fall practice. One of the 200 was "Tony" Brandenthaler, captain of last year's crew and captain-elect of next year's shell.

Every one of the 200 wants to pull an oar in the varsity boat, Leader declared after conferring with the men. Hard work will be necessary, he said, to turn out a shell here to defeat Stanford and California next spring. Last spring Washington won the three cornered race on the Oakland Estuary.

Sultan's Place Coveted

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—A. P.—A plot to depose the Sultan of Turkey has been discovered, according to a Constantinople dispatch dated Monday.

UNIVERSITY TO HONOR MEN WHO DIED IN SERVICE

University of Oregon, Eugene, Nov. 12.—Men of the University of Oregon who died in service are to be honored with some sort of a memorial. Just what form that memorial shall take has been left to a committee of students, faculty and regents. The faculty committee, just appointed by Pres Cambell, consists of W. E. G. Thacher professor of rhetoric, chairman; Colin V. Dymont, executive secretary of the Portland center of the Extension Division of the University, and professor of Journalism; Professor George S. Turnbull, professor of journalism; R. W. Prescott, professor of public speaking; Dr. John F. Boyard, professor of zoology; Ellis F. Lawrence, dean of the School of Architecture.

The student committee is made up of Lyle McCroskey, of Bellingham, Wash., chairman; Edwin R. Duro, of Silverton, and Siss Ella Rowings, of Corvallis.

These two committees will cooperate with a similar committee of the board of regents made up of J. A. Churchill, state superintendent of public instruction; Vernon H. Wawter, of Medford, and Mrs. G. T. Gerlinger of Dallas and members of the alumni association.
