PAY YOUR FINE IN W. S. S., SAY POLICE JUDGES

San Francisco Courts Will Try Character-Building Measures in Minor Cases

Upon the thesis that a thrifty man is a better citizen and "that many of our economic ills and much of our present day social unrest are due directly to thriftlessness," Police and Superior Judges of San Francisco are planning to give persons convicted of minor infractions of the law an alternative of investment in Government securities, such as War Savings Bonds and Treasury Savings Certificates instead of fining them. Judge T. I. Fitzpatrick, Presiding Judge of the Police Court here, said, "I shall be glad to assist in the movement in this direction, keeping in mind, however, at all times, the provisions of the charter of the city and county."

The alternative of investment in Government securities will be offered whenever it is within the power of the judge to fine or set free the defendant in a misdemeanor case. "This attempt," said another judge, "will give such defendant a chance to help themselves and their Government and cultivate a habit of saving, lack of which we feel is often at the bottom of their transgressions."

Family rows which find their way into court and have many times as their fundamental cause lack of thrift or spendthrift habits, are expected to furnish a rich field for the experiment in penalization to be tried by the San Francisco judges. As a rule, the judge has in such cases the right to fine or release defendants with a severe lecture, and hereafter it is probable that family rows in San Francisco will really be beginnings of many bank accounts.

The judges will attach only one condition in levying a penalty of investment rather than fining a defendant, and that condition is that the guilty accepting the alternative must keep their securities until the date of maturity. In this way the jurists hope to lead the thriftless into the ways of thrift, sound living and better citizenship.

Queen Marie Invites Progressive Westerners to Come to Kingdom

BUCHAREST, By A. P.—The Rumanian government is pre-occupied with the task of extending its administrative functions to the territory the kingdom will acquire under the peace treaty. With Transylvania Bukovina and a part of Bessarabia and the Banat added to its domains, the country will be called upon to meet with many difficult problems of organization and control of a country and people grown suddenly treble in area and numbers. It is regarded here as not improbable that the next Rumanian cabinet will have in it a number of representatives from Transylvania. Indeed some see indications that the next Prime Minister will be M. Maniu, now President of the Executive Council of Transylvania.

Queen Marie has often expressed a wish that it might be possible to have a few able Americans and Englishmen come to Rumania to act as financial and executive advisers to the government. "If we could induce some of your smart Americans to come here and act in advisory capacity to us," she said recently to a visiting American railroad man, "I think it would be a splendid thing. They could give us the benefit of their exceptional training and experience and save us from a lot of mistakes."
