Ex-Servicers May Obtain Treatment Any Time or Place

An ex-service man who needs medical or surgical treatment because of illness or injury contracted in the Army or Navy, can hereafter enter any army hospital, Public Health Service hospital, or local civilian institution or sanitarium, and have all his expenses paid by the government. Few soldiers or sailors seem to be aware of this privilege, which is theirs for the asking, and today the War Department instructed the entire personnel of the Office of the Assistant to the Secretary of War, in charge of soldier employment and welfare work, to bring this to the attention of all such men.

Lieut. Colonel Mathew C. Smith, of the General Staff, and head of the Bureau, has issued a bulletin for nationwide distribution, which says:

"Any discharged service man who is in need of medical treatment and feels that his illness is due to wounds or other disabilities received or aggravated while in service, should at once see the nearest army hospital or local representative of the United States Public Health Service for an examination. Addresses may be ascertained from the postmaster. The American Red Cross representative and state or municipal health officer also are able to advise service men about their cases and should be consulted."

"If discharge or other papers showing that the disability was existing at the time of separation from service are available, they should be taken along, as they will be of help in making a decision on the case. However, if these papers are not available the man should not hesitate to apply. Such an applicant will be immediately placed under treatment pending the receipt of the necessary papers."

"If there is no representative of the Health Service in the ex-soldier's home town and no army hospital at hand, and it is possible for him to travel, such traveling expenses, hospital expenses and wages lost while undergoing examination will be paid by the government, should it be decided that treatment is necessary."

"On the other hand, if the physical condition of the man makes it impossible for him to travel, he will be examined and treated at his home. In special cases where it is found that a change of climate will be beneficial, patients will be sent to specially designated hospitals."

Mrs. John Eakin
Dies in Portland

The body of Mrs. John Eakin, who died in Portland Friday following a Caesarian operation passed through Albany this noon enroute to Philomath where the funeral was held this afternoon.

Mrs. Eakin was a former Albany woman, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Ellsworth who moved from this city to Portland about six weeks ago. She spent the greater part of her life here and had many friends in this city.

The Ellsworth family has had many tragedies. Mrs. Eakin's brother, Fred, was killed in a railroad accident several years ago. Two years ago another brother, Frank, was drowned at Mill City. Two brothers, besides the father and mother, survive and make their homes in Portland. They are Clarence and Elmer Ellsworth. Two children, Leslie, aged eight, and the baby born at the time of the baby born at the time of the mother's death, are left in the care of their father. Mrs. Eakin was about 40 years old.

national Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico has sent out for publication in newspapers throughout the country a map and statement showing that 551 Americans have been killed in Mexico, since November 20, 1910.

Of this number, the association states, 428 were civilians and 123 coldiers or sailors. One hundred and sixty-seven Americans were slain during the Madero and Huerta regimes, while 383 lost their lives since Carranza took control of the Mexican government, according to the statement.
