EGYPTIAN JEWELS SET NEW FASHION

New York Women Buy Gems Fashioned After Those of Princess

NEW YORK—Crown jewels of the Princess Sat-Hathor-Iunt, daughter of Senuseret, who ruled Egypt 4,000 years before the time of Christ, and which are on exhibition at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, apparently have set a new fashion in necklaces, brooches and rings for those who patronize Fifth avenue shops.

The collection now on display was found in the tomb of the ancient royalty which was unearthed by Professor W. M. Flinders Petrie in 1914. Although only one blue bead remained on the sarcophagus as a reminder of the Egyptian king's daughter, yet the jewel casket and contents inside were found intact. It was recently purchased by the museum for a large sum.

Among the costly baubles of the Princess are shining pectorals of the deepest lapis lazuli and dainty amulets of dark carnelian popular in the years now lost in a misty past. Her favorite amethyst-necklaces as well as smaller jewel cases and unguent jars are marvels of artistry and skilled workmanship.

One cartouche containing the name of Sat-Hathor-Iunt's father and, apparently a gift from the king to his daughter, might have been worn as a brooch. It consists of symbolical figures of two birds standing on a hieroglyphic base. Over the birds' heads are cobra de capellos, or hooded serpents whose coils form a frame for a scarab or sacred beetle. Below them is the figure of a man kneeling as if in worship.

New York jewelry shop windows at present display ornaments of platinum and diamonds patterned after the designs of some of the Princess Sat-Hathor-Iunt's trinkets. The craftsmen of the Twelfth dynasty, under the Pharaoh Senuseret, however, have not been outdone in skilled workmanship by the jewelry makers of today, says connoisseurs.

Umatilla Indians Die of Influenza

PENDLETON—Charlie Joe, Charles Van Pelt, Jim Kanine and Winnie Kanine, Umatilla reservation Indians died within the last 24 hours of influenza and pneumonia. Mrs. Cora Billings, a part Indian died in Pendleton last night of pneumonia. She contracted influenza while nursing her sister, Mrs. Roy Pamburn, who died last week of pneumonia. The death toll for Pendleton and the reservation is now seven, six of the deaths being of Indians or part Indians.

Nine families were placed in quarantine today and eight others released. There are now 140 homes in quarantine and probably 400 patients, the city physician estimates. The peak of the epidemic is believed reached. However, owing to the success of the voluntary ban against all gatherings, orders were issued today that all funerals during the epidemic be made private.

Visits Parents—

L. R. Allphin son of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Allphin prominent citizen of this county is visiting his parents here this week.

Liberty Bond Brokers Arrested For Fraud

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—In the country-wide cleanup, with wholesale raids on offices of "bond brokers" in many cities, over-night, developments at the treasury today showed, several million dollars worth of War Savings Stamps and stolen Liberty bonds have been seized, and nearly 100 men and numerous women accomplices have been arrested.

Secret Service Chief John Moran assisted by an army of sleuths, reviewing the result of the round-up today, felt convinced that the treasury net had caught the ringleaders in a gigantic scheme, with many ramifications, that would have served to defeat the treasury's drive to benefit legitimate investors.

CHANGE OF POLICY

When the Albany Automobile, Truck and Tractor Show was first announced the plan was to give a plain exhibition of motor vehicles. But it was later decided to make the affair the equal to any on the coast, regardless of size, and present an entertainment that will be worth coming miles to see. For this, and other reasons, a change of

25 cents admission

will be made. But you will not only see the finest display of cars, trucks and tractors that you could wish to see anywhere, but you will be entertained by high class talent.

The Multnomah Hotel Orchestra

will play every afternoon and evening and will furnish the music for the dance in the evening. Their jazz singer is a bear. There will be vocal and instrumental music, vaudeville acts, and other stunts.
