EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You can Bring Back Color and Lustre with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and not a medicine. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

NATURE'S COURSE ADOPTED IN GROWING OF LOGANBERRIES GIVES BEST RESULTS, SAYS PUYALLUP MAN

That the cannery business is being pushed in many sections of the Northwest is evidenced again by a meeting that was held at Roseburg the last few days in which the News of that city quotes from a representative of the Puyallup cannery as follows, which may be of value to Albany growers. The speaker, Mr. Chamberlain said:

I have always been a keen observer of nature's ways and was willing to learn from that great school. Most growers of berries of the bramble varieties train the bearing vines up in the sun and the new ones underneath in the shade, while nature in the wild always sends the new shoots straight up to the sun I have also observed that the largest and best berries are always underneath the shade of the foliage, while those directly exposed to the sun have less pulp and are inclined to be seedy and smaller. It is also a fact that left to nature's course a great mass of vines are developed but are so matted that it is almost impossible to pick the berries.

With these facts in mind I decided I would develop a system that would first put the new vines above; thus helping to shade the berries and with a free play of air and sun, would develop in the new cane, a strong, vigorous and hardy character, and secondly would devise a way by which a greater growth of vines could be disposed to go on to allow of proper training of the same and easy gathering of the ripened fruit. The result has been that I now have what is styled a three trellis system on posts, six feet high, with two picking trellises below and a new vine trellis at the extreme top of the posts. Each trellis consists of two No. 14 wires, 20 inches between each trellis. The rows are set 6 feet apart with a hill each seven feet in the row. Each odd hill is trained on the lower trellis and the even numbered hills on the second trellis, giving a space of 14 feet between hills on each trellis. This practically doubles the bearing vines, and makes about 1100 hills on each acre, which under proper cultivation and fertilization ought to produce a crate or more to the hill.

This is a brief, concise statement of a system which is not patented and on which there is no attempt to profiteer. In any case it has resulted in a heavy yield of fruit, much larger and more luscious than under the old system.

In my estimation the loganberry is the coming berry to raise. The east cannot grow it and its production is limited to Pacific Coast valleys. The consumption of it as a table fruit put up in a heavy syrup, or for jellies, jams, and pies, as well as in juice for fruit drinks, is increasing more rapidly than any other fruit and there seems no reason to fear that a ready and profitable market will not always exist, for the area of production does not extend over the whole U. S. as does the strawberry or other berries.

The first woman physician to be appointed a medical examiner by any of the large insurance companies was Dr. Anna D. French, of New York, in 1882.

Bruce Evans Is Brimful of Pep Like Fairbanks

Too many church members are like wheel barrows—they only go as far as they are pushed.

"God does not expect a Christian to go around looking like the tail end of a horse and using his lower lip for a laprobe."

Night after night more people have crowded into the Baptist church to hear Bruce Evans. Balconys, Sunday school rooms and auditorium have been crowded night after night. Last evening many extra chairs had been carried in and yet during the week some have stood on the shelf—as Bruce calls the gallery.

One little lad was heard to say when he came out of an Evans meeting, "Gee, that guy has as much pep as old Doug." And no doubt the thing that makes Bruce a master with the kiddies is the fact that there is something doing every minute of the service.

Last night the evangelist spoke on preparing to meet God. It was kindly but a heart searching message. No one has any trouble understanding Bruce's English. And yet even when he says the most severe things he smiles and takes the sting out of the remark. Boosting is one disease of a Californian as most people know. And this man who lives in that state, does a whole lot of boosting. Evans does not attack other churches. Last night he complimented the schools and said the boys and girls who were down in front of him—and there were about a hundred—had learned the facts he had taught them in his afternoon meeting as quickly as any he had ever had.

Tonight he addresses the C. of C. banquet and at 7:30 speaks at the church.

PE-RU-NA
Worth Its Weight In Gold

You cannot mistake the words of Mr. W. W. Northrup, of 908 Fourth Street, Sioux City, Iowa. He is enthusiastic about his present health and the merits of PE-RU-NA and wants everyone to know it. Here is a recent letter from him:—

"PE-RU-NA is worth its weight in gold and then some. I used to think it only a woman's remedy but have changed my mind. I had a cough, especially in the morning. After using half a bottle of PE-RU-NA was much better. I would cough up chunks of phlegm and mucus, my eyes itched and bothered me. Judging from the symptoms given in your almanac it was catarrh. My stomach is in much better condition since using your medicine."

"Use this testimonial, if you wish. Don't hesitate to advertise the merits of PE-RU-NA."
(Signed) W. W. NORTHROP.

There are thousands just like Mr. Northrup, skeptical at first but convinced by a trial of PE-RU-NA.

DON'T BE AN UNBELIEVER.

If your trouble is of a catarrhal nature, try PE-RU-NA, then tell your friends. It is fine after an attack of grip or Spanish Flu.

Swift & Company was a favorite topic of conversation last year.

Committees investigated it, commissions attacked it, law makers threatened it, many condemned it.

Presently people began to think about it; began to realize that Swift & Company was performing a necessary service in a big, efficient way; began to wonder whether it could be done as well in any other way.

Read what Swift & Company did last year, and what it meant to you, in the Swift & Company Year Book, just issued.

It's a fascinating narrative—simple facts in simple words. There is one ready for you. Send for it.
