AMERICANS ARE BUYING HIDES

Said to be Anticipating a Resumption of Competition with Germans

BUENOS AIRES—American buyers are reported to be buying Argentine cattle hides on contracts which would include the greater part of what are known as "freezing house skins" up to the middle of June, 1920. The American buyers, according to La Razon, are anticipating German purchases which are expected to be facilitated by the resumption of maritime traffic with German ports.

GERMANS PRESENT UNIQUE DEMANDS

Residents of Occupied Zones Claim Damages for Soldiers Acts

COBLENZ, Germany—Claims for damages to streets, buildings, farms and even individuals all reputed to have been done by American soldiers or American equipment of some kind since the Army of Occupation reached the Rhine, aggregate something more than 5,000,000 marks. Those allowed total approximately 250,000 marks. Many claims are unique and some without any justification.

A woman who contended that her facial appearance had been marred for life, owing to cuts caused by flying glass due to an explosion at an ammunition dump, sent in the modest claim for 250 marks. It was allowed.

Another woman, whose husband had been killed by an American military policeman who was chasing distributors of contraband liquor, submitted a claim to the Americans for 250,000 marks, contending that her sole support had been taken from her. The Americans maintained that the German soldier who was acting within his rights in line of duty. The claim was disapproved.

Some of the claims are humorous. Last summer, the Eighty-ninth division borrowed a goat for a circus at its headquarters. Recently a claim was filed with the American town major asking damages on the contention that the health of the goat had been injured. The claim was pigeonholed.

A Rhineland farmer recently demanded five marks for a bean pole alleged to have been stolen by an American soldier. An army commission heard the case and threw out the claim on the ground there was no evidence to show that an American had committed the theft.

Went to Corvallis—Barney Hecker made a business trip to Corvallis this afternoon.

From Lebanon—Mrs. Dollie Donica and Mrs. Nutbrown of Lebanon were in Albany this afternoon on business.

"At present," says La Razon, "the demand for cattle hides is very active all over the world. The United States bought during the war the greater part of Argentina's production, but now cannot do this for the reason, that the tanning industry has progressed very much in several countries such as Spain, Sweden, Norway and Holland, and these countries today are disputing the market. As Germany is commencing to operate on a large scale in the international hide market, the United States will not find the same facilities that she had in 1915-18 to impose her prices on the market."

"It is estimated that Argentina next year, will be able to dispose of more than 6,000,000 cattle hides."
