FIGHTING THE NEWS PRINT HOGS

B. Frank Irvine, editor of the Oregon Journal, went to Eugene last week and received an earfull of information regarding the newsprint situation as it affects the smaller daily and country weekly publishers. The facts were brought out at the Oregon Newspaper Conference and so greatly was Mr. Irvine impressed that he went back to Portland and began to pour broadsides into the larger daily papers for their unskimping waste of white paper.

Nor is the Journal alone among the largest papers of the country which is fighting the abuse. In a recent issue of the New York American and other Hearst publications, William Randolph Hearst notified the barons that unless they voluntarily carried out their pledges to congress that they would reduce the size of their publications from 10 to 12 per cent that he would make a fight on behalf of the country press. Beginning with last Sunday all Hearst papers have been reduced 10 per cent in size and Hearst assures us that a 24 page daily with a 72 page Sunday section is large enough for any city. In one case recently the New York American had to leave $14,000 worth of advertising out of a single issue. Equal to half a year's business with the Democrat

The Democrat finds itself in the predicament mentioned. So do many other papers in Oregon and all over the country. The unusual demand for advertising, the waking up of the business men to the fact that advertising is their greatest ally in fighting for business and other causes are bringing the papers to unheard of size and causing a great waste in print paper.

Unless the larger papers voluntarily curb the use of print paper, Congress certainly should take the matter in hand.

CAN YOU AFFORD TO LOSE?

"You can't afford to gamble with money you can't afford to lose." This is the warning issued by a dealer in legitimate securities when he was asked his opinion on the frenzied buying of wildcat stocks which is sweeping the country today.

This is very simple advice, and should be easily taken. The desire to get rich quickly is as natural as any impulse of human life. The love of adventure, of taking a chance, is born in most people's blood. It is true that many of the greatest industries of the present day would still be non-existent, that some of the greatest fortunes would remain unmade, if at one time or another some man had not been willing to take a chance. But for all this the person of small means, before he risks his savings in uncertain speculation, will do well to consider the words quoted.

There are many avenues of safe and legitimate investment open always. There are reputable firms dealing in such investments who will give honest advice before accepting a client's money. To such as these the wise men who cannot afford to lose will turn for advice in placing his funds so that they may earn the best return with the least amount of hazard.

The country is full of speculators and crooks who have wild and enticing offers to lure the unwary holder of liberty bonds or savings into changing his solid financial ground for glittering quicksands. If you have money you can afford to lose, turn to these men and let them reap their golden reward while your pile dwindles. If you can't afford to lose, play safe—don't gamble!

It Is Glareless and Tipless

These are the two big advantages of the Westinghouse White Mazda Lamp.

The white porcelain-like glass of which the bulb is made, eliminates glare and softens and diffuses light.

The bulb being tipless is less apt to break in handling, and is also easier to clean. These lamps are especially adapted for home, office and store lighting.

RALSTON

LECTRIC CO. 310 West Second St.

When asked her secret of eternal beauty, Lina Cavallieri said: "There is only one. Sleep every night with the face wrapped in veal cutlets!" Wrapping the face in any kind of a good piece of meat every night is most people's dream of beauty.

There won't be much legislation from now on. Every law-maker has a well-defined notion that the less he does between now and election day, the less he'll be blamed for. And they probably have the public sized up about right. It's the sins of commission, rather than the sins of omission, that the people notice.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Monday, March 1, 1920

St. David's day, the great national festival of the Welsh people.

Centenary of the birth of John P. Reynolds, a noted agricultural expert for many years head of the Illinois State Board of Agriculture.

The week beginning today has been designated for an observance of National Thrift Stamp Week throughout the United States.

Important decisions are expected from the Supreme Court of the United States when it reassembles today after the February recess.

The railroads of the United States, which were taken over by the Government as a war-time necessity, today will be returned to private ownership.

Today is annual "town meeting" day in Massachusetts, when the voters in scores of communities will assemble for the settlement of the local political questions.

The annual show of the Southwest American Live Stock Association, one of the most notable exhibitions of its kind in the country, will be opened today at Oklahoma City.

An inventory of United States resources in manufacturing, mines, quarries, forest products, and oil and gas wells will be commenced today under the auspices of the Census Bureau.

The International Joint Commission on Waterways has fixed today as the time for holding a preliminary hearing at Buffalo on the project of improving and developing navigation of the St. Lawrence River from Lake Ontario to Montreal.

The first Mississippi Valley Exposition, which aims to attract world attention to the industries of the Mississippi Valley and to bring the people of that region together for the advancement of their common interests, will be opened today at St. Louis.

Self-Portraiture.

To take a photograph of oneself it is necessary to have the camera very firmly placed either on a tripod or a table so that it would not move during exposure. A length of thin, strong string should be attached to the shutter trigger. The string should be led down to the floor level, passed under the lower rail of a heavy chair, along the floor, under your boot (between the heel and sole), and held in the hand behind the back. If the string runs freely a slight pull should release the shutter and make the exposure. If it does not, pick the camera up and start again.

Comments of the State Press

Divided They Fall—

"United, capital and labor will stand, divided they will fall," says General Wood, and while the statement is so old as to be trite it is so true that it cannot be denied.—Eugene Register.

Like Some Old People—

Speaking of American extravagance, an 8-year-old lad at Pittsburg found a $100 bill one morning. Before noon, he had a $40 bicycle, several air guns, a hatful of candy and 42 cents left.—Ex.

Constitutional Duty—

What a changed aspect the world's affairs would have today if the president had performed his constitutional duty of seeking the advice and consent of the senate.—Oregonian.

Blessing In Disguise—

Anyway the president of the National Brewers' Association is hopeful. He described the present dry spell in a recent address, as a "blessing in disguise." Most persons will agree with him, although failing to understand where the disguise come in.—Eugene Guard.

Vanishing Man—

The New York State College of Agriculture reports as the result of a canvass of some thousands of farms of that state that the number of people living on them decreased by 3 per cent and the number of hired men decreased 17 per cent in 1919.—Oregonian.

German Spy—

Wealth has its handicaps. If Louis F. Swift had not been a millionaire he would never have been cursed with a German spy as a son-in-law.—Astoria Budget

Women Voters—

The women of the League of Women Voters went on record in their first annual convention at Chicago in favor of the League of Nations without reservations.

Women do not want a disturbed world. They want an organized world, a law-abiding world, a world directed by peaceful counsels. They want armaments reduced, want boundary lines of nations permanently fixed, want international disputes settled by a court of the world rather than by a military decision.—Oregon Journal.

Linoleum

A Hall Floor that Never Fails You

Your reputation for neatness starts to rise or fall at the threshold of your reception hall. You may be the neatest of persons, but if your hall floor is composed of wood, sooner or later its appearance may strike unfavorably the very persons you are most anxious to please.

ARMSTRONG'S LINOLEUM

floors in natural wood-grain effects not only have the elegance and good taste of hardwood, but are easily cleaned and proof against the damage of dripping umbrellas and wet rubbers. No type of floor is more durable, or less likely to fade and become scratched and spotty. Our linoleum assortment is complete and suggestive. When may we expect to see you?
