EXTERMINATION OF MOOSE IS FEARED

One More Open Season will Replete Maine Woods, Thinks Commissioner—Big Season on Deer—More than 5000 were Killed Without Impression being made.

(By Peter F. Carney)

Maine last fall, had its first open season on Moose in five years and it is the opinion of Willis E. Parsons, Commissioner of Inland Fisheries and Game, that another open season will just about exterminate all the Moose in the Maine woods.

Says Mr. Willis in his report: "The Moose were increasing and were appearing in large numbers in Washington county and some other big game counties, but they had not been hunted for four years and had become quite tame, appearing often in the settlements, and have fallen easy prey to the hunter who had them located for weeks before the opening of the season.

"The next legislature may deem it wise to put another continuous close time on Moose, if they are to be preserved. One more open season, which will be had before the next legislature assembles, it is believed will practically exterminate them.

"Our lakes and streams, when depleted, can be restocked, but when this monarch of the Maine Woods disappears, he is gone forever."

What Mr. Parsons says is right. After a four years' closed season the Moose are tame, and the longer the close season the easier it is to kill them. Moose, like deer where they are protected for any length of time, become used to seeing hunters and do not fear them. Then comes an open season and they walk right up to be killed.

This doesn't seem right. It seems as if there should be a close season long enough to get a goodly number of Moose in the Maine Woods. It is just as the Commissioner says the lakes and streams can be restocked but a dead Moose cannot be brought back to life. There can be no pleasure in exterminating Moose. Every true sportsman will and should do his best to protect them and see that laws are provided for that purpose. It is to be hoped that the kill of Moose will not be so severe next season.

Deer hunters had a glorious season in Maine. Eighty-four thousand, three hundred and thirteen licenses to residents and 2,557 licenses to non-residents were granted—which we might add is a mighty goodly number for Maine. And these hunters bagged 5,748 deer, 4,185 of which were shipped out of the state. Here is what the Commissioner has to say about the deer situation:

"Many more deer have been taken this season than last and nearly twice as many reported at some of the inspection points as last season. For instance, at Bangor 1,265 deer and 33 bear were shipped up to November 29, while the number at the same time the year previous was 680 deer and 10 bear. These represent but a small portion of the deer taken in this section. I saw 437 deer in one trip of 18 days."

The bear killed in Maine totaled 146. Maine is one of the best fishing and hunting states in the country, and the trappers think it is a pretty good state, too. Six hundred and forty-two trappers' licenses were granted in 1919.

Women formerly had a right to succeed to the throne of Denmark, but they lost this right in the year 1853, when a new law of succession was made.
