CHEAPER MEAT

In almost every city there are meat shops so "high class" that they do not keep the "cheaper cuts." The customer asks in vain for a piece of beef from the fore-quarter. If she protests, she is told that the shop does not buy the fore-quarter because there is not enough demand for it. This fact has discouraged many a consumer seeking to practise the thrift so widely recommended.

In most cases, however, it is the consumer's fault. Most meat shops do keep the cheaper cuts, and sell them very cheerfully, at reasonable prices.

It is expected that all shops will keep them for one week at least—the "cheaper meat week" initiated, rather appropriately, by the federal department of justice. The week varies for different states. The week of March 29 is assigned to Oregon and Wisconsin. Dates for other states will come later.

During this week there will be an especially large supply of the cheaper meats on hand, and a special effort will be made to sell them. The federal authorities will see that there is no over-charging. Every family is urged to substitute these less expensive kinds of meat for the "high up and far back" portions that are ordinarily so much in demand, and therefore so expensive.

Many a family will be surprised to find how good a chuck roast or a piece of boiling beef or a soup bone can be made, by proper cooking. As for nourishment, of course there is just as much of it in a pound of cheap meat as in a pound of expensive meat, if the bone is left out of consideration. And it should be remembered that by buying the cheaper cuts more frequently, the consumer helps to make the expensive cuts cheaper, too, and so can better afford occasional indulgence in them.

A CHANCE TO CATCH UP

Many Americans are seriously concerned at the fact that immigration, which has been at low ebb for several years, is now actually less than emigration. Since the armistice was signed, up to the end of March, it is estimated that 325,000 immigrants will have come into this country by way of Ellis Island, and 360,000 will have left it.

It is a change, indeed, from the days of vast influx preceding the war. Its disadvantages, too, are apparent everywhere. There is a lamentable scarcity of labor, especially unskilled labor. This condition seriously retards the revival and progress of American industry and is one of the chief causes of high prices and difficult living.

There is also something to set down on the other side of the ledger. When it is remembered how, in the early days of the war, the air was filled with laments over our undigested horde of foreigners, it is easier to bear these present ills with patience.

We used to long for a subsidence of the immigrant wave in order to let us catch up and assimilate the aliens already here. Lately we have been given an unprecedented opportunity to do this very thing. We have a providential chance to Americanize the aliens, and establish something like real national unity in the United States.

This possibility, rightly considered, is worth more than all that might be gained by the economic exploitation of a horde of raw foreign labor, after the old fashion. And if we are wise, we will make a thorough job of it before the next European invasion is upon us—as it will be before many years.

Comments of the State Press

Did Country a Service—

In favor of Mr. Newberry, who was charged with buying his way into the United States senate, the left-handed argument was advanced that he did the country a service by preventing the election of Henry Ford.—Eugene Register.

W. J. Bryan—

It is a seeming paradox in American politics that a man who has so often suffered political defeat as William Jennings Bryan is yet able to hold so large place in national confidence and esteem or to wield so compelling an influence in the course of national events.—Oregon Journal.

Drydock at Astoria—

The time is fast approaching when the Astoria harbor must be equipped with a drydock of not less than 15,000 tons capacity. This will be necessary in order that the port may be prepared to care for the regular liners, which before many months will be making Astoria a regular port of call.—Astoria Budget.

U. S. Looking In—

The league of nations is functioning. The United States is merely on the outside looking in, because we accidentally and temporarily have a few bull-headed reactionaries in the wrong places in this country.—Oregon Statesman.

Two Enemies—

It was a happy coincidence that Newberry and his associates were convicted and sentenced on the same day that three communists were found guilty of criminal syndicalism in Portland. While in Michigan the law-defended the republic against the attack of millionaire by corrupt use of money, in Oregon it defended the republic against attack of three men who style themselves proletarians and who propose violence.—Oregonian.

Built to Withstand Pounding Blows

Road blows your tires receive in service are no less severe than pounding blows from a blacksmith's sledge. Ajax—and Ajax alone—has provided scientifically to offset these blows.

On both sides of the tread on Ajax Tires, we have built in heavy rubber "Shoulders of Strength." They brace and reinforce the tread. They give more strength where strength is needed, just as the same principle strengthens the blacksmith's anvil.

AJAX ROAD KING

Mileage records of thousands of users testify to the superior service the Road King yields. Note the massive tread. See the Shoulders of Strength.

Come and examine the Road King. It is the tire you need.
