TUESDAY, JUNE 3, 1913.

"Teddy Bear" Mint Juleps.

"One lump of sugar, one teaspoonful of liquor and the mint leaves stirred in with the liquid."

If the testimony of one of the plaintiff's witnesses in the Roosevelt libel suit against a Michigan publisher is to be believed, the above recipe was faithfully followed by the White House chef in preparing the favorite drink of Ex-President Roosevelt.

Again we are informed by another witness placed on the stand by the plaintiff that the ex-president never mixes his drinks.

These are interesting historical facts and the Democrat is indeed glad to learn that Mr. Roosevelt required only one teaspoonful of liquor for his mint juleps. In common with every other American citizen we are glad to know that the former president never mixes his drinks.

The editor of the Democrat does not pose as an expert and therefore we are not in a position to say as to whether or not more than one teaspoonful of liquor would have spoiled the mint julep, but we assume that the defense will place experts on the stand to prove if possible that the president followed an ancient and well established precedent in limiting his chef to one teaspoonful of John Barleycorn.

We have been told, however by men who we considered experts, that mixing drinks is not only bad taste but indicates lack of judgment. It is claimed that only a specially constructed tank will hold mixed drinks without showing some outward signs of a capacity load. If this is correct, the ex-president showed rare discretion.

The outcome of the Roosevelt libel suit against this misguided and indiscreet Michigan publisher will be watched with interest by an anxious and curious public and certainly after the evidence produced by the plaintiff, no good, true and loyal Bull Moose will hereafter have the temerity to mix his drinks or indulge in anything stronger than a "teddy bear" mint julep.

Memorial Day.

Today we pay a loving and tender tribute to the nation's dead. We do honor to those who helped sustain the honor of their country and who fell upon the field of battle.

But we not only do honor to the military heroes on Memorial day. We pay tribute to our deceased relatives and friends and upon their graves we place a flower in token of our never-dying respect and admiration for their virtues. Their faults, if any they had, are a forgotten memory. When they passed on, their little eccentricities passed on with them, but their kindly deeds, their helpful words and their cheerful smile is imprinted indelibly upon our memory. We remember the flowers and forget the thorns.

Death turns hatred to ashes and bleats out from the memory of man all evil thoughts towards the one who has passed on to eternity. Friendship never dies, the tie of blood is unbreakable, and death even settles and cancels all scores between enemies.

The real MAN will save at least a single flower for the tomb of the one he once despised and by so doing will make partial restitution for his lack of Christian charity.

TRIBUTE PAID TO NATION'S DEAD

Fitting Ceremonies Mark Ob- servance of Day at Graves of Departed Heroes.

FLOWERS WILL BE STREWN ON WATERS OF WILLAMETTE

Special Services at First Pres- byterian Church Will Desig- nate Waning of Day.

With flowers strewn upon the waters of the Willamette river in honor of the dead sailors and with similar emblems of respect planted on the graves of dead soldiers who stood in the ranks and were shot down or succumbed to disease, a big parade, special services at the G. A.
A. R. hall and in churches of the city, are marking and will bear testimony of the fact today that Oregonians do not forget those who fought and died for their country upon the battlefields and the seas.

Fitting ceremonies marked the observance at the cemetery where hundreds followed the parade. In the afternoon the members of the G. A. R. and the ladies of the Circle assembled on the big steel bridge and scattered thousands of flowers upon the waters of the river. In the evening the old soldiers and their wives will be the honor guests of the States Reception, at the First Presbyterian church, when impressive services will mark the waning of the day.

Like a vast column of patriotic spirit, the big parade was formed on Ferry street promptly at 10 o'clock and shortly afterwards proceeded to the cemetery. Headed by the splendid Albany High school band, the local militia company was next in line, dressed in full dress uniform. Nearly 400 school children of Albany and surrounding places, each in dress and carrying a bouquet of flowers, occupied the next position in the column, followed by the Spanish-American War Veterans who were accompanied by eight little misses who acted as flower bearers.
Then followed the old soldiers and the ladies of Fair Oaks Circle of the G. A. R. Local automobile owners kindly donated the services of their cars for the transportation of the members of the G. A. R. at the request of the Spanish War veterans.
The rear of the column was brought up by the different civic organizations of the city, several lodges being included, and hundreds of citizens of Albany joined in the rear.

Ritualistic services were held at the plats at the cemetery of the G. A. R. and Spanish War Veterans, being conducted by members of the different orders. The G. A. R. and Spanish War Veterans' ceremonies were exceedingly impressive. The firing squad
