COST OF LEATHER.

The following was submitted to the editor with the request that the same be either published in full or made the subject of editorial comment:

"Leather and meats come from the same source, the food animals. Consequently leather prices and meat prices, in a general way, go up together, within approximate limits.

"The great rise in meat prices, which every one knows who has had experience in household management, has been reflected in leather prices, during the last few years. Inasmuch as leather forms two thirds of the cost of making shoes, an increase in prices of shoes was absolutely necessary. No shoe manufacturer could resist the powerful upward tendency, and of the retail shoe dealer had to increase his prices accordingly.

"Inferior leather is in its worst possible place in shoes. It pays to buy good shoes, in which first class leather is used. They are really cheapest in the long run.

"But NO store anywhere can sell today at the prices of four years ago. It is impossible."

Perhaps the strongest argument in favor of the Wilson plan for a reform in the currency system is the fact that it meets with the disapproval of Minority Leader Mann.

A "Seedless" Congressman in 1914.

In the interest of the government service, the Democrat suggests that an expert commission man be at once dispatched to Washington with instructions to assume entire charge of the work of assembling and mailing free government seeds to the constituents of Congressman Hawley. The entire time of the Oregon congressman and that of his secretary is apparently consumed in this difficult work and the mental and physical strain is entirely too much for our representative at the national capital.

From the standpoint of the congressman, the seed business is a most important part of his duties. It must be attended to promptly, even though less important duties are neglected. The assembling of seeds is a first lien upon the time of Mr. Hawley and to the Democrat, it seems poor business policy to put a high salaried congressman at work on a job which could be better attended to by some commission merchant with a small force of assistants.

work of sorting seeds and addressing envelopes unites a statesman to a greater or less extent for debate. He comes into the chamber tired and worn out. He is physically exhausted and is unable to speak effectively against the inequities of the Democratic tariff bill.

Now had Mr. Hawley been relieved of this work in due time, it is possible that a ringing speech from the Oregon congressman might have changed the entire tariff history of the extra session of congress. The logic of an Oregon statesman might have convinced the house Democrats that free wool was both an-American and un-American.

Again it is possible that the ancient plan of improving the Willamette river might have been rescued from its dusty sepulchre and made an issue in the lower house of Congress.

Unless Mr. Hawley is relieved of the responsibility of attending to the duties of his seed bureau, and is thus enabled to devote more time and attention to questions of state, the Democrat predicts the election of a "seedless" congressman in 1914.

J. F. Watson, of the Lebanon Lumber company's Albany branch, returned today from a short business trip to Lebanon.

MISFITS.

Contributed by F. P. Nutting.

One of the arguments used against a candidate for councilman in Corvallis at the recent election was that he bought his lumber in Albany and hired Albany carpenters in the erection of a residence. He was elected by a good majority, a fact that speaks for itself.

The football is a very tame affair compared with the aeroplane.

There is no greater sport than breaking blue rocks at two or three cents a crack.

The Mc's are now strictly before the footlights.

A whole page in the Examiner is devoted to summer resort advertisements. An Eastern magazine offers a prize of $100 for the best article of not more than two hundred words telling the worst summer resort in the U. S. This suggests a big field for earning the money.

"The Subjugation of Mere Man," is to be the title of a thrilling book of the future telling of man's downfall under the hand of woman. Prepare to take your medicine.

At last it is settled. Ella Wheeler Wilcox sings: "God sent us here to make mistakes." And we are all making them.

Perhaps the smartest thing Shakespeare ever said was the following: "What fools we mortals be."

By the way the sun is certainly appreciated when it appears these June days, and we're all willing to run the risk of a little burn of the cuticle.

GOLDBLATT GIVES HIS SIDE CONCERNING DOG CASE

Explains Court Procedure According to His Way of Looking at It.

Editor Albany Democrat.—In your issue of the 26th inst., you stated that I admitted in open court that my dog was running at large, therefore can state that I admitted such, only upon advise of my attorney, in order that he could have the case dismissed. But, had I known that such was the case, I would have shown positive proof that the dog was not mine, and had the court prove otherwise. I have in my possession a list of prominent business men of Albany that are willing, and are going to, contribute all the financial aid I shall need to circulate a petition against the dog ordinance.

R. GOLDBLATT.

She is the oldest member of the order of the Eastern Star, being a member of Sotoyome Chapter. She said at today's reunion that she was afraid she might not be able to attend many more.

C. & E. BRIDGE TO BE REPAIRED SOON

Drawbridge and Viaduct Will Be Strengthened with Steel Girders.

SEVERAL CAR LOADS OF MATERIAL HAVE ARRIVED

It Is Stated on Good Authority That Road Is in Better Condition.

Work of repairing and strengthening the drawbridge and viaduct of the Corvallis & Eastern railroad spanning the Willamette river at the foot of Railroad street, will proceed within a few days. Several carloads of steel have arrived and have been unloaded at the site.

It is reported that reconstruction and repair work is progressing all along the line of the Corvallis & Eastern from Detroit to Yaquina. It will be remembered that this is somewhat pursuant to the edict issued some time ago by the state railroad commission after that body conducted a thorough inspection of the road from one end to the other. The order of the commission was for the reconstruction of practically the entire system and in substance that it was at their own risk that the patrons of the road travelled it.

However, it is stated on good authority that the road is now in much better condition than it was when the commission inspected it, as the investigation was made when conditions were at their worst, caused by a winter of bad weather. It is stated that repairs have been continuously made and that the road is enjoying an unusually heavy travel for this season of the year.

Because of the unprecedented heavy early summer travel to Newport it became necessary a few days ago to add another train to the Newport-Albany run. There are now two trains going and coming daily over this route.

The extent of the improvement to the drawbridge and viaduct leading to the bridge on the Linn county side is to be strengthened likewise.

PRECIPITATION HAS BEEN VERY LIGHT DURING 24 HOURS

However the Weather Reports Herald Showers Tonight or Saturday.

For the first time in nearly two weeks, this morning's weather report is void of a precipitation record. Although a little rain fell yesterday, the fall was of so little consequence that a record was not made. The range of temperature during the past 24 hours is given as 72 to 54 degrees which is a little higher than that prevailing for the past three days. The river is recorded at the 6.8 foot stage and is reported to be rapidly falling, after a rapid rise from 3 feet during the past week. Although the weather report said fair yesterday and today, this morning's report says showers tonight or Saturday. From this it may be inferred that the showery weather is still on.

HE WEDS ONE GIRL WHILE ANOTHER WAITS

Bride "Waiting at the Church" Learns Fiance Married Her Rival.

Rogers, Ark., June 27.—While his betrothed was waiting at her home for the groom and minister to appear and solemnize her marriage, Clark Holloway, who resides at Marble, Madison county, Arkansas, and who was the prospective groom, suddenly changed his mind, procured a license and was married to Miss Eva Adams.

While her lover was being wedded to another woman, Miss Ula Hutton, who was to have been the bride, was "waiting at the church." A large number of friends were waiting at the Hutton home to witness the ceremony and the wedding feast had been prepared. But the nonarrival of the groom-to-be aroused the suspicion of Miss Hutton, and in company with her brother, she went to the county clerk's office, where she was informed that Holloway and Miss Adams had secured a license just a short time before.

Holloway had been in California for the past two years, during which time he had corresponded with Miss Hutton. The two were reared in the same community among the mountains of Madison county, Arkansas, and had been sweethearts since their childhood.

Miss Margaret Smith, a popular young stenographer of this city, left this morning for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Smith of Mt. Pleasant.

Miss Gertrude Stevens returned yesterday from a protracted visit with friends at Florence.

Mrs. D. O. Stevens who has been the house guest of Mrs. Robert Stevens left yesterday for her home in Portland.

Bruce Blair, Prof. H. V. Tartar, and Miss Mary E. Sutherland. Special attractions that will appear on the various programs are as follows:

The chautauqua will be held in Bryant's park, a beautiful spot, and $1.50 will be charged campers for the two weeks. Tents can be rented. A request for programs and general information sent to J. S. Van Winkle will bring response at once.

Albany people will be afforded the same attractions at the local chautauqua as will appear at the Willamette valley assembly at Gladstone, except that the Albany Chautauqua includes many more features, and by comparison it will cost $600 more than that at Gladstone.

VICTIM OF SHOOTING NOT HUSBAND OF ALBANY LADY

Local People Confuse R. D. Jackson of Moro With Harry W. Jackson.

An article published in this morning's Oregonian concerning the shooting of a young druggist, attracted considerable attention in that the belief was entertained that the young man was the son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. McCoy, who married their late daughter, formerly Miss Hilda, but upon investigation it developed that Harry W. Jackson is the name of the young man in question who was also a druggist.

The owner runs in part: R. D. Jackson, of the Monroe pharmacy, was shot at 4:30 p. m. today by a man who arrived on the train from Portland less than half an hour before the shooting. Jackson was in a confectionery store playing solo when the stranger came in and spoke to him. Jackson answered, the two calling each other by their first names. Jackson turned around, resuming his play, and the stranger shot him in the back of the head through his hat. The bullet came out under the jaw and was spent on the table close to F. A. Sayers, who was playing at the same card table.

Jackson was placed on a pool table and attended to by Dr. Nason. He has a slim chance to recover, the bullet having pierced his jugular vein, the victim bleeding freely.

The stranger is named Easterbrook, and has a recommendation as a druggist. He seems to be addicted to drugs of some kind. He tried to kill himself after the shooting. He had a large spring-bank knife in his outside coat pocket. He is confined in the county jail.
