"But there is a larger issue than the necessity of judges to remain discret at all times. These two magistrates say, in effect, that because a law does not accomplish its full purpose, then, and for that reason, it should be annulled. The law against murder does not prohibit killings, but it is doubtful whether any sane person would even suggest tearing the statute from the books. It is the duty of judges to assist in the enforcement of law, rather than to condemn it because the law may not be forest."

Many a Bull Moose yesterday yelled "treason," when the press dispatches conveyed the information that close friends of the former progressive candidate had approached in the following the statute from the books. It is true, the law is not perfect, but it strikes at the chief cause of much suffering and unhappiness in married life. The work of erecting the building has been in charge of the following local contractors: Excavation, Mr. A. W. Docksteader; brick and stone work, Mr. A. H. Sandstron; carpenter work, Messrs. Blount and Babb; plumbing and tinning, T. M. Barr and M. Ludwig; painting, Mr. Henry Suessens and Son. In addition to these, employment has been furnished to a large number of laboring men for several months, the work of all of whom has proven very satisfactory.

Construction work was begun about a year ago and continued throughout the winter with a loss of only three or four days time on ac-count of weather conditions.

By Saturday afternoon the bank will have everything in readiness to show to all who may care to see the new building. It is the desire of the officers and employees of the bank, that they may have the pleasure of welcoming all the people of this community on that occasion.

Her life has been eventful. The old Southern custom of a family giving to a daughter upon her marriage a little colored girl as a personal attendant, and the feeling in the South about liberated negroes before the war, were the potent factor's in Mrs. Johnson's long trip across the plains to Oregon in pioneer days.

A daughter of the family on whose place she was born was married when Mrs. Johnson was seven years old and she was given to this daughter as a wedding present.

W. H. Booth of Lebanon Sues Scroggin and Washburn on Account of Buildings.

Charging that the owners of a building ajoining a structure owned by him, persistently allow water from sinks, basins and other places, to run through the wall on to his property and that they have never fufilled their promise to repair the leaks, W. H. Booth, of Lebanon, through Attorney N. M. Newport, has filed an injunction suit in the circuit court against P. M. Scroggin and Seymour Washburn, to recover $250 damages and costs and disbursements of the suit. suit suit.

The buildings in question are business blocks located on the main thoroughfare of Lebanon. The plaintiff alleges that the water has been allowed to run onto his property for the past year, damaging the roof, rafters, joists and sills as to make them become rotten. He alleges that it is a nuisance, that it is injurious to health and that the building will in time become unfit for use if the damage continues.

MARION AND WASHINGTON

Woodburn Independent says:

Rev. W. S. Gordon says that in his travels over the valley he notes a much larger area in corn than usual. This is especially the case in Marion, Linn and Washington counties. He says that his father has planted from five to ten acres of this crop for thirty years, on his farm in Washington county, and thinks that varieties better adapted to this climate are now being developed. There are some fine fields east of this city on the stage road and farther out—L. H. Grassman's being especially noticeable.
