PROPERTY

The Grizzly group consists of the "Colorado" and the "Colorado Extension" quartz mineral claims, situated in the Sumpter District of Baker county, Oregon, six miles northwest of the town of Sumpter, forming part of the rich mineral zone wherein are located producing mines of fabulous wealth, such as the "North Pole," "Columbia," "Golconda," "Bonanza" etc., etc. Development work on the Grizzly group has disclosed a gold bearing ledge of remarkably high value, development work has progressed and there is every reason to expect the property will become one of the greatest mines in Oregon.

Read Our Proposition Carefully

A limited amount of Treasury Stock is offered for sale at SIX CENTS per share, payable cash down or in twelve monthly payments, the funds realized being used for opening up the property and making a producing mine of it. The purpose of the company is to have a steady inflow of cash to meet monthly pay roll and expenses incidental to active development work. This can be realized by selling stock on monthly installments just as well as if selling for all cash.

Remarkable Opportunity

The following offer is made investors for the purchase of Treasury Stock: 2,000 SHARES AT 6c PER SHARE, $120.00; TERMS $10 PER MONTH UNTIL PAID. LARGER BLOCKS OF STOCK ON PRO RATA SCALE This plan enables many investors to secure control of a larger block of stock than if paying all cash, thereby affording the opportunity of gaining enormous profits on actual cash outlay, it being considered a certainty that long before the last monthly payment shall be made, active development will make the stock worth, on the open market, several times the value at which it is now being purchased; with a strong probability that par value will be attained. Subscriptions for stock may be sent to the FIRST BANK OF SUMPTER, Sumpter, Oregon, or to the Secretary of the Company. For prospectus and further information, address

THE OREGON PIONEER.

In What Respects he Differed From all Others.

The Oregon pioneer was not a gold-seeker primarily, like the thousands that flocked to California in 1849. He was not a fugitive fanatic, like the Mormon refugees that colonized Utah. He was not primarily a hunter or trapper. He was not a political bankrupt and semi-filibuster, like the Crocketts and Hustons, who went to Texas and California long before our war with Mexico.

The impulse which led men to leave the favored spots of the middle West and Southwest to undertake the oldtime, long and perilous six months journey across the continent is not so easy of explanation as the natural drift of New England to fertile western New York and the middle West, or the overflow of Virginia into Kentucky and Tennessee, Pennsylvania into Ohio, and of Kentucky into southern Indiana and southern Illinois. The pioneers were like the first settlers of New England and the middle West, men of good blood, of exceptional vigor of body and mind; and in the favored regions of the middle West could have found no insuperable difficulty in their wrestle with existence. They were restless Americans of vigorous body and mind, who were ready to leave safety and comparative comfort and risk the dangers and privations of a long overland journey to reach a country whose situation and conditions would satisfy the desire to mind their own business in their own way better than the land of their birth.

At all events, whatever be the explanation of the overland emigration to the Pacific coast, it is unique in the history of the American pioneer. The emigration from New England to the Mississippi and the settlement of the South was along lines of natural progress, but the flight from the fertile middle West to Oregon was the boldest, most adventurous performance of the American pioneer. Only men of exceptional courage and individuality would have thus exchanged a land of comparative comfort for the uncertainty of a new, unknown, untried land, and only men of uncommon physical hardihood and mental resolution could have endured the journey and the battle for existence which began when the journey ended. Like the statefinders and founders of New England, the pioneers of Oregon are correctly described as men—

Grown strong through shifts and wants and pains;
Men, skilled by freedom, and by great events
To pitch new states as Old World men pitch tents.

California "Pocket Hunters" Here.

Robert Mounter, of Jackson, and James Murray, of Redding, California, who have been reading THE MINER, arrived in Sumpter last week. They are experienced prospectors who have been engaged for the past few years in "pocket hunting." They are outfitting here, buying horses, tools and provisions and will leave in a day or two for the hills. While prospecting for ledges, they will not neglect to hunt for pockets. If this mining "specialty" has ever been tried in the eastern Oregon gold fields, it has been practically a failure. THE MINER has heard of no effort in this direction having been made. Although much experience and skill is required to find a pocket, it is thought to be some what a demoralizing calling, the element of chance entering very largely into the operation, owing to the uncertainty as to the value of the pocket when found. It being thus a gamble, pure and simple, the fascination is intensified and the "business" partakes of the nature of playing a slot machine.

"The Portland", conducted by Gus Woodward on Mill street, is fully a representation of its name. A visit will convince you of this.
