LEAF GOLD NEAR PRAIRIE.

Ward Brothers Strike it in the George Washington.

About two months ago the Miner contained an article announcing a strike of leaf gold in the shaft of the George Washington, owned by Ward brothers and William Sexton, and situated three and one-half miles north of town.

Another strike was made in the tunnel Thursday morning of the same kind of stuff, but in larger quantities and more extensive.

Blasting was being done and after the smoke cleared away chunks of leaf gold as large as a person's thumb could be seen laying all over the floor of the tunnel.

How much and how deep this character of metal goes on this strike the owners can't tell yet.

They have run a tunnel in ninety feet and have but ten feet more to work before reaching the bottom of the shaft.

A. L. McEwen, who came over from Sumpter with M. Meinhard, the smelter man, when asked to express his opinion regarding such strikes, said: "Such strikes are made occasionally, but not in very large quantities. However, it is a sure sign a big dividend paying mine is further in."

The specimens exhibited in town by one of the Ward brothers was the pure gold.

These gentlemen have a bonanza and they know it. A force of miners is kept at work all the time and it would be no surprise to hear of the "big thing" being struck any time.—Prairie City Miner.

Work at the Oregon Wonder.

In company with Sig Durkheimer the Miner man visited the Oregon Wonder camp last Sunday. In approaching the camp one would imagine from the number of horses tied to trees and the number of people around the tents that a genuine old fashioned Missouri camp meeting was in progress. All that was lacking was Sam Jones or some other noted evangelist. A dozen or so people living in that neighborhood had congregated there, besides half a dozen or so people from town, who, with the steady borders at the camp, made a congregation of about twenty-five people, and they all left saying that they enjoyed themselves, and that Mr. Morey knew how to entertain in the mountains. Aside from preliminary surveying and locating water rights, etc., nothing of consequence has been done on the Oregon Wonder. The men in charge say that no tunnel work has been commenced and might not be for some time. The road to the camp is in good condition and lumber and freight is easily hauled. The tents, cabin and cook house are put up in first-class style, and around camp it has the appearance of a small village.—Prairie City Miner.

Old Folks Prize Winner Dies.

The sudden and totally unexpected death of Mr. J. D. Kennedy, at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. J. F. Landreth, in this city at an early hour yesterday morning, was the occasion of sadness on the part of all his acquaintances, especially his elderly companions on the excursion to Sumpter on Thursday, in which Mr. Kennedy was awarded a prize as the third oldest man in the party. Mr. Kennedy retired shortly after his return from the enjoyable trip to Sumpter that day, feeling as well as usual and nothing indicated that his end was so near. Sometime during the night he complained of not feeling well and got up for a short time. He again went to bed and apparently to sleep. About daylight his wife called to him, and not getting a response, took hold of him to wake him up. She made the discovery that he was dead, having passed peacefully away. Mr. Kennedy was aged 81 years, a native of Pennsylvania, and came to Baker county from Kansas eighteen years ago.—Baker City Democrat.

MINING LAWS OF 1852.

Some Resolutions Adopted in Southern Oregon at That Time.

During the early mining days on the Pacific coast, there was no law governing the location and operation of mining ground. This was always regulated by local rules agreed upon by the miners of each camp. The Eagle has been handed a copy of the mining rules adopted by the miners of southern Oregon, which we understand are similar to the rules that governed mining in Grant county in the early 60s. Following is the copy:

"Resolved, first, that 50 yards shall constitute a claim in the bed of the creek, extending to high water on each side.

"Resolved, second, that 40 feet shall constitute a bank or bar claim on the face extending back to the hill or mountain.

"Resolved, third, that all claims not worked when workable, after five days, be forfeited or jumpable.

"Resolved, fourth, that all disputes arising from mining claims shall be settled by arbitration, and the decision shall be final."—Canyon City Eagle.
