MINES LOOKING WELL.

Great Business Activity in Cable Cove District.

Following is an interesting letter by O. L. Miller, secretary of the Baker City chamber of commerce, published in the Democrat:

Business may be quiet in Baker and Sumpter just now, but it is lively in the mines. There have been so many changes in the way of buildings, shaft houses, hoisting works and better roads between Sumpter and Cable Cove that one can scarcely recognize the old landmarks. Last September I drove from Sumpter to the Eagle mines in the Cove and it was a very quiet but rough road, not a sign of life or an indication of mining could be seen. I made the trip again this week and the change is wonderful. The Columbia mine has many new buildings and looks like a new camp. At the Golconda many new changes have been made and their big mill has changed from a mere curiosity to an actual producer. Prospecting is going steadily on at the Amazon mine and from the immense dump they are a long way under ground. The Mountain Belle and Free Coinage each have a fine shaft and hoisting machinery, also other buildings for the accommodation of the miners and other help.

At the Cove the Eagle mine is being worked and the ore sent to the smelter. Seven men are employed and the Imperial seems to be the principal producer of the group. Lumber is on the ground for the erection of a hoisting plant and shaft house on the Black Dwarf mine, which adjoins the Eagle group. Many improvements have been made at the California mine and development work is in progress.

New life has been infused into the prospects on the Grant county side of the line at the Cove. The recent sale of the Baby McKee mine to Colonel Grayson and his associates has stimulated confidence in the many prospects on the headwaters of the North Fork of the John Day river. New roads are being built and the Baby McKee company are commencing permanent improvements. Five houses are under process of construction, and a development tunnel will be run this winter that will develop not only the Baby McKee property, but demonstrate the value of the whole group of claims just above it.

The future is certainly full of promise for the business interests of Baker county, and while we may feel the slack after a little over-booming there is no reason why we should not feel more than satisfied with the results of the present season's development in the mines.

Tell the truth about the resources in the eastern Oregon gold fields and capital will come in plenty to develop all industries. There is more than double the developing work going on now than one year ago and if out of it all we gain one good producing mine out of every ten prospects, which are now being developed, it will be a wonderful camp.

Satisfied With the Judgment.

In one of the back counties of Virginia there lives a worthy couple, whom we will call Peter and Mandy Jones. Peter owned a small farm a few miles from the village, which was the capital of the county, and where Peter spent the greater part of his time, to the neglect of his duties, and to the great distress of his worthy spouse, he generally returned in a state of intoxication. On one occasion while he was absent in town on a drunken spree, his cows were attacked by disease and all of them died. Upon his return home, his wife informed him of the death of the cows, and hoping to impress upon him a great moral lesson, said:

"Now, Pete, those cows dying that way was a judgment of the Lord agin' you for your wicked drunken doings."

Pete meditated for a moment, and then replied:

"Well, Mandy, ef the Lord has a judgment agin' me and is willin' to take it out in cows he is welcome to 'em." And he arose and went to town to get drunk again.—Harpers Magazine.

Attempted Wholesale Poisoning.

Frank Yates, erstwhile druggist for Dr. Howard, at Carson, has gone to parts unknown. During a business visit of the Doctor to Union, Yates became dissatisfied with his position and "departing left behind (not a footprint on the sands of time." Before his departure, which was not at all hurried, he poured about an ounce of croton oil into five bottles of tinctures. This was discovered before any of the drugs had been sold, or serious results might have followed, as one drop of the oil is a dose and is then only given in severe cases. Dr. Rohr, of Pine, made the analysis. Dr. Howard states that he is also shy about $16 in money and several articles of value. No reasonable cause can be given for Yates' actions, as he was always considered reliable and trustworthy. It is said that he had been drinking heavily of bitters, and his friends allege that he was not responsible for his actions. Dr. Howard says he will bring him to justice if it takes a lifetime and is taking measures to that effect.—Garson Tocsin.
