GRIZZLY STOCK

Affords an opportunity for profitable investment that cannot be equaled in the Sumpter District. The mine is now being actively operated and has reached a degree of development practically assuring the stability of the mine. The ledge, carrying high values in gold, copper and silver, is over 40 feet in width. Work is being rapidly pushed, tunnelling and sinking on the ledge, blocking out ore and adding to the pay dumps, and it may be expected that the mine will be a producer and the company a dividend payer at an early date. Every dollar realized by the company from the sale of treasury stock is being used for improving the property. The sale of stock will be continued until the mine is a producer. As development progresses the price of stock will be advanced.

Secure this stock now at 10 cents. That it will be worth its par value within 12 months is a conservative estimate. Subscriptions for stock may be sent to the company direct, or to the First Bank of Sumpter, Sumpter, Ore.

EARLY DAYS OF SUMPTER.

Bonanza First Quartz Mine Worked in This District.

The Baker City High School Nugget has issued a very interesting historical number, treating of the early days of this county. Regarding Sumpter it says:

Near the foot of the Elkhorn range of the Blue mountains, about twenty miles west of Baker City, is the well known town of Sumpter.

The history of this town began in the early sixties and for many years the mines in its vicinity have been worked and abandoned. It is related that five Confederate soldiers from Price's army left California for the gold fields of Idaho. In the Willamette valley, they joined an expedition for the Blue Bucket gold gulch and thus came as far as the Elkhorn mountains. On October 21, 1861, they discovered rich gold in Griffin's gulch near Sumpter, where they built a cabin and called it Fort Sumpter, in honor of the first engagement of the Civil war. This marked the beginning of a flourishing mining camp.

For many years, Fort Sumpter, as it was called, until 1885 was represented by but one log cabin, where all wayfarers met a hearty reception. Soon the Chinese came pouring in. They picked about over the choicest ground unmolested for over thirty years, and the amount of gold these Mongolians sent to China will never be known; although it is estimated at many millions. One Chinaman, alone, was robbed of a $17,000 nugget.

The immigration of the white men amounted to very little before 1867, when miners from the Blue mountains made many locations in this region. They sunk shafts, drove tunnels and built arastras, but all proved a failure, on account of the lack of other machinery.

The Bonanza was one of the first discoveries in this district that ever produced much wealth. It was discovered while placer mining by a man known as Jack Haggard and located to Haggard, Winters and Dicks. After a year or two they sold it for $360 to some persons not at present known. It changed hands several times during the next seven or eight years and was two or three times abandoned and relocated. In 1885 its value had been discovered to such an extent that it was sold for $10,000 to the Bonanza Mining company. This company built a 10-stamp mill in 1886, at a cost of $12,000, and spent $40,000 in development work, but it all turned out to be a failure. It was sold to the Geiser family in 1890 for $3,000, not including the Haggard and a few other claims which they previously accepted in payment of a debt. Active operations began in 1891, and during the next eight years it produced over $1,000,000 in gold. Since its early discovery new claims have been added until it now embraces sixteen claims, or an area of over 300 acres. It was sold in 1899 for about $750,000 to the Bonanza Gold Mining and Milling company.

Hand Drill Does the Work of Eight Men.

A press dispatch from Colfax says that W. W. Waite gave a public exhibition of the working of his new rock drill, of which mention was made when the machine was first patented. The test was witnessed by a number of men who are interested in mining. The machine, which is made to be operated by hand, consists of four hammers, each weighing four pounds, attached to a wheel, which is turned by hand. The drill is turned automatically, the whole machinery being operated by turning a crank. One man can run it easily. Much interest was taken in the test, which drew a large crowd. A huge boulder weighing about 200 pounds was used for the test. One man turned the crank and drilled a hole in this rock, which is one of the hardest found in this country, at the rate of an inch each minute. Mining men who witnessed the test pronounced it a success and say it will revolutionize mining in low grade ore, as the machine does the work of eight men.
