OPENED A MINE WITH PRAYER.

Cripple Creek Proposition Operated on Religious Lines.

The recent opening of the plant of the Good Will Temple Gold Mining and Milling company at Cripple Creek, Colorado, with prayer, appeals mightily to the imagination of the churchmen who have invested in its stock. Probably never before in history was a gold mine opened with prayer, and certainly never were the prospective profits of an expected bonanza devoted beforehand to the building of a great gospel temple, the surplus to be spent in "clothing the poor and feeding the hungry."

This Good Will Temple is to be built in Chicago, and if Dr. Gunsaulus, a noted Chicago divine, who offered prayer at the opening of the mine, has been quoted correctly, it is to be "such as the world has never before seen," while another more enthusiastic promoter announces that "it will make Solomon's temple look like 30 cents."

The only thing which may prevent the consummation of these splendid plans is the horrifying possibility that the gold mine may turn out to be a gold brick. What the golden dreams of the Good Will stockholders will come to, time alone can tell. Whatever may be the outcome there will be no chance for anyone to complain that he has been deceived.

The mining property was given to the company by a man who in so doing obeyed what he believed to be instructions from the other world. The people who subscribed money to the stock of the company did so with the understanding that all the profits, if any, should be devoted to the work of the church. They were simply asked to take a chance in a speculative proposition with the gospel of good will as the beneficiary of all the possible earnings.

Dr. Gunsaulus is quoted as stating his belief and that of associates that the mine will prove a veritable bonanza. Chicago people, with the spires and arches of the prospective temple rising before their mind's eye, will certainly unite in wishing the gospel gold miners the best of good fortune. No matter how rich may be their strike, they will be able to find good investments for all their earning in the relief of human suffering.—National Banker.

Cripple Creek Gold Production.

Cripple Creek February gold production reached $2,058,000, against $2,100,000 last month. The tonnage was 12,500 smelter ore, worth $875,000, and 36,200 mill ore, worth $1,173,000. The camp's output for the fiscal year is $23,247,000, the grand total to date being $92,143,287. Production is not being rushed owing to lack of transportation and treatment facilities. The conditions will change during March with a sixth railroad entering the field and new mills starting. Out of two months' production as given, $611,000 dividends have been paid, $181,000 being the February record.

Only Cobalt Specimen at Buffalo.

Through the efforts of J. F. Batchelder, of this city, Oregon's mining exhibit at the Pan-American exposition, at Buffalo, will include perhaps the only specimens of cobalt ore that will be found at Buffalo. This ore comes from the Standard mine in Prairie City district, and as far as known is the only cobalt found in this country. The shipment to be made to Buffalo consists of 765 pounds and includes several chunks weighing from 50 to 200 pounds each.—Portland Telegram.

Lessons in Lace.

Mrs. Marsh, next door to MINER office, will give practical instructions in lace work. Materials and hundreds of patterns to select from.
