This Mine is a Shipping Mine

The Baker City Sampling Works gives the following returns for two small shipments: Lot 68-1, 253 sacks of ore, dry weight, 13,063 pounds. Gold, 7 ounces; silver, 9.40 ounces. Gold per oz, $20; treatment cost $8. Net price per ton, $130.50. Freight, $7 per ton. Net value of lot, $890.24. Lot No. 102, 378 sack ore; dry weight, 18,810. Gold, 6.20 ounces; silver, 9 ounces; gold $20 per ounce. Cost of treatment, $8; net price per ton $115.80; freight at $7 per ton; net value of lot, $1010.04.

THE SHAFT is now down 70 feet. Tunnel now in over 700 feet. Rich body of ore in shaft (sinking stopped on account of water) should be reached in the tunnel in 300 feet, or by July 15. The directory is a guarantee of good faith. It is true that all prospects do not make mines, but it is also true that all mines were once prospects. Here is what the experts say of the Diadem: F. F. Grimes, a prominent mining man of Republic, Wash., says: "I consider the Diadem the best property I have ever examined. It is surely a remarkable showing and, in my judgement, the making of a great mine." Hon. Chas. Bonner, connected with Granite Mountain mine, in Montana, says: "In all my experience as a mining superintendent, extending over a period of 20 years, I consider the Diadem is by odds the best mine I have ever been connected with." Hon. J. K. Pardee, a mining expert well known all over Utah, Idaho and Montana, says: "In all the years I have mined I never saw a prospect that made the showing of the Diadem mine." A. L. McEwen, M. E., one of the best known English experts throughout the entire northwest, says: "For an undeveloped prospect, I consider it among the very best I have ever examined. I believe it will prove to be a great dividend payer when developed." Mr. James O. Loundigan, M. E., of Republic camp, Wash., and Boundary district British Columbia, says: "After making a large number of assays from this property, I am convinced that it is the best thing in Eastern Oregon for the amount of development work done."

The above is a plain business statement of this property. The management now offer for sale 50,000 shares of the treasury stock at 15 cents per share. Applications for stock must be accompanied by the money and should be addressed to Otto Herlocker, treasurer of the company, Sumpter, Oregon. For information address,

FAMOUS EATING HOUSES.

In early days when the Southern Pacific trains stopped at Aurora, then known as Dutchtown, for meals, that place gained an enviable reputation through the hospitality of the proprietor of the Pioneer hotel, Mr. Jacob Giesy, and the house still enjoys a liberal patronage from wheelman and local teamsters. Tourists over the O. R. & N. never tire of singing the praises of Grandma Munra, and the Log-Cabin eating house, at Meacham, on the summit of Blue mountains, where the kindly face and gentle manner of the old lady, together with a bounteous spread, cheer the weary traveler on his journey.

There is another little lady in the Blue mountains, presiding over a station that is as deserving of mention as either of the above. A stage trip over the eastern Oregon roads has never been referred to as a pleasure trip, and nothing short of compulsion ever causes a passenger to make the journey twice. The roads are rough, the drivers and equipments none of the best. After a ride of twenty-four miles, crossing two mountain ranges, the descent of the hills having been made at break neck speed, the traveler is weary and ready to quit. The stage draws up to the station, a large, well-furnished house, and the passengers are escorted to a reception room that bears the stamp of welcome and good cheer on all sides. A glowing fire in the large, old-fashioned fireplace, occupying one end of the room, soon dispels the chill felt after a long ride in the mountain air, and fits one to thoroughly enjoy a good meal. The dining room is even more cheering than the reception room and the table "fairly groans" under the load of edibles prepared by Mrs. Minot Austin, at Austin station, to tempt the appetite of the guests.

Not only are all the luxuries of the city market found there, but as well the luxuries produced on a well appointed farm. The manner of preparation is that of a master hand, nothing being left to be desired, and the table service is of the best. The half hour spent at this hospitable board is long remembered as one of the genuine enjoyments.

Mrs. Austin is of southern parentage, possessing that whole souled spirit for which the southerners are noted, and takes pleasure in catering to the public. Preferring her own home at the station to the dining hall of a city establishment, she has repeatedly declined offers to take charge of hotels.

The ride from Austin to the next station is usually made after dark and, while the scenery is grand, it is only on moonlit nights that the traveler can see the grand old hills and forests, with occasional silvery streams winding their way oceanward.

Spanish Gulch Nugget Worth $2500.

The Eagle is informed that a mammoth nugget has just been taken from the placer mine owned and operated by Robt. Cannon, of Spanish Gulch, and W. H. Johnson & Son, of John Day, down at Mule gulch, in the Spanish gulch mineral belt. The nugget weighed about twenty-five pounds and while it contained considerable quartz, it was valued at $2500. This is decidedly the largest nugget taken from the placer mines of Grant county since the early mining days, when Bob Marshal had a $10,000 nugget stolen from his mines on Vinson creek by a Chinaman. This placer mine operated on Mule gulch by Messrs. Cannon and Johnson produced handsomely last season, and bids fair to do equally as well this season. They have a large supply of water and will be able to continue the operation of their mine until late in the fall. This property is decidedly one of the most productive placer mines being operated in interior Oregon at the present time.—Blue Mountain Eagle.
