 Dec. 31, 1908.

New Year Greeting.

The old year is gone and we hail with renewed hope and enthusiasm the advent of the new. We might have accomplished more during the past 12 months, but now is no time for regret or melancholy reflection. Let us forget our lines of omission and profit by our mistakes, by trying to avoid similar ones in the future.

We have made good progress the last year. It has been slow but sure. We are now at the beginning of greater tasks and the accomplishments of bigger purposes.

This newspaper will continue to do its utmost for the best interests of all. We have faith in our town, our county and our state. Most of all, we have faith in our people, and we are confident of their loyal support in the future, as in the past.

We wish to express our earnest wish for a happy and prosperous year for all our readers.

There are many attractions for the homeseeker in this community, and we have received a goodly share of them during the past year. Nothing helps a community more than attractive literature descriptive of its soil, climate, resources, and opportunities. Let us all boost for a greater town, a greater County and a greater state.

The legislature will soon convene in biennial session. The members should devote their time to the consideration of important legislation. This they will no doubt do, as the senatorial question was settled by the people at the polls last June. Every man who signed statement No. 1 has but one thing to do—stand by his pledge.

The police department of Portland is noted for its inability to catch a criminal or prevent a crime. We wonder if the people don't often question the necessity of maintaining so many men in the public service. They all draw salaries and wear expensive uniforms.

Vesuvius is on another rampage. The poor peasantry of Italy are suffering untold horrors from Molten lava, fire and ashes. It seems as if hell had broken loose, sure enough, when Vesuvius has an eruption.

Some Wonders of New York City.

Over two hundred and fifty thousand people work at night. Coney Island is sometimes visited by five hundred thousand people a day.

There are 132 department stores employing over ten thousand people.

The population is now 4,800,000 London's population is 500,000 more, but New York is growing seven times as fast as the British metropolis and should become the largest city in the world inside of ten years. The population increasing at the rate of five to one, compared

Just the Contrary.
 Bessie was just finishing her breakfast as papa stooped to kiss her before going downtown. The little one gravely took up her napkin and wiped her cheek.
 "What, Bessie," said her father, "wiping away papa's kiss?"
 "Oh, no," said she, looking up, with a sweet smile; "It's wubbing it in."
