HE SOLD THE KING A THRIFT STAMP

Richard Sipelle, 11 years old, who is a student in the Crocker Intermediate School in San Francisco, won national attention recently when he sold King Albert of Belgium a 25 cent Thrift Stamp. The King had just seated himself in his automobile after an official reception in San Francisco when "Richard, the Lion-Hearted," braving the United States Secret Service men, leaped aboard the King's machine and thrust Thrift Stamp and card into Albert's hands.

"Thank you," said the King, and then the King's car lurched forward leaving the kid behind.

"I didn't want the two bits," said Richard. "I wanted the King to know what a Thrift Stamp is."

PAVING IN TOWN

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

PETER GNOME'S DINNER.

"Listen, gnomes," shouted Peter Gnome, "and hearken to me brownies, and pay attention, Bogey family, and heed me, elves, I am going to give a dinner."

"Why, Old Mr. Giant!"

"They're such good members, they have lived up to the rules and regulations of the club so well. They've thought every day was nice, and they've tried to show others how each day can be made nice for something, warm ones and cool ones, rainy ones and sunny ones."

"So I am going to give a dinner. Pray all come and hear the news."

The brownies and the gnomes and the elves and the Bogey family and old Mr. Giant and Witty Witch and the goblins all came hurrying to the spot where Peter Gnome stood.

When he saw them all he waved his hat high in the air and shouted:

"There is a little cave near here. It would not be big enough for old Mr. Giant, but it is going to be my new home. There is moss inside, and there are little ferns growing about."

"There are little cracks in the rocks and sometimes I will be able to talk to the insects and to hear why they do this and why they do that."

"So I am going to give a cave warming."

"What?" they all asked in surprise.

"When folks give a party in a new house, or one into which they have just moved, they say they are giving a house warming."

"Well, as my house is to be a cave, and as I am going to give a party in it, I think I should call it a cave warming."

"Perfectly sensible," said Witty Witch. "A very sensible young fellow is Peter Gnome."

"Still," said old Mr. Giant, and stopped for a moment, then commenced to speak again, and then to wipe a tear away.

"Why, old Mr. Giant, what is the matter?" asked Peter Gnome, as he hopped up on Mr. Giant's right shoulder, pulled his right ear and kissed the tip of his ear gayly.

"I was being a little selfish," said Mr. Giant.

"You — selfish!" shouted Peter Gnome. "What in the world do you mean?"

"Yes, I will tell you," said Mr. Giant.

"Good," said Witty Witch. "I always approve of creatures explaining why they're hurt if they are hurt, and not keeping it to themselves so it will grow larger all the time, and doubtless wander farther and farther away from the truth."

"Peter Gnome is going to give a cave warming," said old Mr. Giant, "and he said his cave was too small for me to go into. It hurt my feelings, for I thought my dear friend Peter Gnome loved me."

"Oh, Mr. Giant," said Peter Gnome, "how glad I am you have told me what was the matter. Yes, Witty Witch is right, we should tell things that are hurting us and get them all fixed up, for it was such a great misunderstanding. You didn't understand me and I didn't understand you."

"Explain," said Witty Witch. "I shall do so," said Peter Gnome, "and without delay. You see, the cave, just nearby, is where I expect to live. Inside the cave I shall sleep and talk to some new little friends and have my cozy little home life, but I'll only spend a very little time inside my cave."

"Most of the time I'll be on my two great tables, or in the spaces between the tables. Come, let me show you! And it is here where we shall have our meetings and our parties, our dances and our dinners. Don't you see, Mr. Giant?"

"On these two flat stone tables I planned to give the dinner of my cave warming, or I should say the outside of my cave warming!"

They looked and saw the two big tables, and then with a turn and twist of his cap the tables were covered with goodies to eat, bonbons and paper caps and presents.

"I'm so glad you still love me," said old Mr. Giant.

"I always will, never fear," said Peter Gnome.

Sounds Hunnish.

N. E. Cole returned Tuesday from a trip to Marshfield, Myrtle Point, Roseburg and other southern Oregon points. He visited some of the big logging camps of that section where he saw real logging operations.

Mrs. John Miller and Mrs. John Barkman of Donald entertained delightfully Thursday afternoon for the benefit of the U. of O. Woman's building. The ladies formed congenial little groups about the large airy rooms of the Miller home, and chatted over their needlework and later over tea cups. The ladies present from Aurora were Mesdames Schwab, William Wurster, F. L. Miller, A. W. Kraus, George Ehlen, John Kraus, Diana Snyder, J. W. Sadler, Earl Gribble, Fred Yergen, A. D. Yergen and Glenn Yergen. Those from Donald were Mesdames Mercer, Aufranc, Johnson, Freeman, Moore, Thurston Yergen, and Elizabeth Miller and Arda, May Markman; and Mrs. Page of Salem, an honor guest, and Mrs. Hughes of Fargo.

Hop Sales

Several large lots of hops have been sold the past few days. Among the local transactions are the following:

Glenn Carothers, 31 bales to Seavey at 83¢ cents; H. L. Colvin 72 bales to Seavey at 85 cents; Fred Yergen to Bishop & Bell, 11 bales at 85½ cents; Lee Loy 175 bales at 86 cents and Tong Lee 97 bales at 87 cents; J. P. Feller, 42 bales to Bishop & Bell at 85½; E. Oberg, 73 bales and W. R. McKay 51 bales at 85 cents; Charley Wong 33 bales at 78 cents.

Dealers now estimate that there are about 750 bales left in first hands in Oregon. Not over 150 of these are left in the Aurora district.

The Oakland Sensible Six

The lightest Six on the market. Weight 2150 pounds, 44 horse power. The Oakland Sensible Six cars cost LESS TO OWN, OPERATE AND MAINTAIN than any other automobile built.

Owners of Oakland Sensible Sixes constantly report getting 18 to 25 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Mileages of 8000 per set on tires are usual, while records of 12,000 are not infrequent.

The easy-riding qualities of these cars are the result mainly of the combination of long, slow acting, under slung rear springs and large 32x4 tires.

Price $1275 F. O. B. Aurora

The New Improved Dort 1920 MODEL

Has several new features. Another car of reliability and quality.
