

THE AURORA OBSERVER

THURSDAY, MARCH 25, 1920.

N. C. WESCOTT

EDITOR AND PUBLISHER

Entered as second class matter March 28, 1911, at the postoffice at Aurora Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

The "War Loan Organization" has now changed its name to the "Government Savings Organization" but it will sell you war saving stamps at the same old price.

The Salvation Army home service program for 1920 includes the raising of $13,240 in Marion county and $7,810 in Clackamas. Money given the Salvation Army has never been dissipated. Salvation Army relief reaches the right spots.

Mr. Ex-Service Man—If you want to go to school or to college, take a home study course or brush up in general, is to cut out this clipping and mail it, with your name and address, to C. A. Kells, Room 305, Y. M. C. A. Bldg., Portland, Oregon, and the "Y" folks will do the rest. The money allocated to this county should be applied for within the next thirty days or there is a possibility of it being used for ex-service men in other counties.

The Pershing for President press bureau of Lincoln Nebraska, continues to send out great quantities of campaign matter—boosting General Pershing, of course, for the Republican nomination. Unless there should be a deadlock in the Republican convention, there seems little chance for the great general. At all events, his fame is secure as commander-in-chief of the A. E. F. His election as president could add nothing to his laurels. However many consider him a far better choice than the mere politicians who are so avidly seeking the honor.

The Interchurch World Movement is making a survey of every town and rural district in every county in Oregon to determine the increase or decrease in church membership; the membership of associated organizations, like missionary societies, young people's societies; the number of pastors compared with the entire population; and the salaries received by the ministers of the state. It is intimated that most counties and towns will not escape hearing some unpalatable facts when the survey is made public. It is said that church attendance in some places has declined as much as 30 per cent in the past 10 years. Automobiles and fishing trips receive the blame for part of this decline. It is useless to place the blame, without offering a remedy. It is equally futile for the church to fight the automobile. It must adapt it and the conditions it brings about, to the purposes of the church.

FARM POULTRY

BOYS AND GIRLS JOIN CLUBS

First Step in Organization Usually Is to Get Support of Business Men of Community.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Poultry-breeding associations are usually the outgrowth of pioneer work in organizing boys and girls into poultry clubs or of repeated efforts to interest producers in better poultry methods. In some instances, however, leaders in communities have expressed their desire to make an effort to establish for themselves a business or side line that will add to their incomes as individuals and likewise increase the property of the community.

In such promising localities, the first step in organization usually is to get the support of local business men. In small towns many business men own farms and consequently are interested in agriculture, which in turn benefits the various lines of business. At the same time their assistance is helpful in financing the association. In fact this is frequently accomplished by inducing the business men's association to contribute a suitable fund for standard-bred stock which is to be distributed among the farmers who join the association. Cooperation of that kind is usually obtained easily if the business men are shown the advantages of the organization and how the increased prosperity eventually will benefit them.

Another plan that has proved to be satisfactory in Overton county, Tenn., is direct financial assistance from the banks. In this case the banks advanced $1,000 to be invested in breeding pens through the co-operation of the poultry club agent and the county agricultural agent. Each pen consisted of ten hens or pullets and a male bird which cost on an average $2.50 a bird. The pens were placed with club members in the various communities. Each person who received a pen guaranteed to return, after the first year, 20 fowls in payment for the original ten hens or pullets furnished him. Those 20 standard-bred fowls, together with two selected male birds, were divided into two pens and the next year were given under the same conditions to two additional club members. One of the requirements of the plan was the continuance of this "endless-chain" system for five years, or until every member possessed at least one pen of standard-bred fowls. Thus the original pens have been multiplied by many hundreds, and the entire county has become well stocked with one breed of fowls.

CONDITION OF LAYING FOWL

Body of Hen Is Deeper in Rear Than at Front of Keel—Pelvic Bones Well Spread.

A hen that is laying has an enlarged abdomen, due to the enlarged intestines, ovary and oviduct. The body is deeper in the rear than at the front of the keel. The condition is reversed when a hen stops laying. The pelvic bones are well spread in the laying hen. As production decreases the ear lobes contract.

MINERAL ELEMENTS FOR HEN

It Pays to Burn Refuse and Brush Heaps Near Poultry Range for Bits of Charcoal.

Hens seem to obtain certain mineral elements that they crave from wood or coal ashes and it pays to burn refuse and brush heaps near the poultry range so that the birds can clean up the ashes and bits of charcoal that remain after the fire.

FAVOR STANDARD-BRED FOWL

Once Taken Up by Farmer He Will Never Go Back to Mongrel or Crossbred Poultry.

When a farmer discards his mongrel or crossbred poultry and takes up standard-bred fowls he never goes back to the poorer stock, because he finds standard-bred birds more satisfactory and more profitable.
