

ROAD WORK GOING ON

Work began this week graveling the state road between this city and Barlow. The Highway commission has announced that no newly graded roads will be paved until well packed down after being gravelled. Trucks are hauling gravel from the plant set up on the Irvin place near the bridge.

Work on the Aurora-Butteville road, and on the Aurora-Donald road is going on. These trucks are hauling for the county from the Hunt gravel plant on the Smucker farm.

Hugo Muecke, Ralph Colvin and other Union district citizens went to Oregon City Tuesday to interview the county court about the permanent road to be built in that district, under the bonding plan, which provides a mile of "paved" road. The people of Union favor the use of the $11,000 provided for a "permanent" road, for a gravel road. The $11,000 will not build more than a mile of pavement, but will build three or four of good gravel road. The people of the Union district propose to change to gravel and begin at the White four corners and build toward Wilsonville. They hope also that Marion county can be induced to close the gap on the Wilsonville road by graveling half or three-quarters of a mile, thus giving a good road from here to Wilsonville.

HIGH SCHOOL ANNUAL

The Aurora High School annual, The Wings, published an interesting short history of the Aurora Colony written by Leona Will, one of the high school students. This is a story that is worth reading and keeping and every one living in Aurora or vicinity should secure one of the annuals which sell at 25 cents each.

As the edition is limited to 200 copies those interested should get their copy early. Besides the Aurora Colony story, there are many other features of interest to families and friends of the students of the high school, and the pupils of the grades.

The Annual is worth far more than its cost and every copy should be sold quickly.

Theoda Gribble is its editor, Jessie Keyt business manager, and Loraine Grozer and Lottie Netter, associate editors.

DONALD IS GROWING

In a write-up of the town of Donald, the Capital Journal says that new enterprises are coming to the front there, among which is operated by C. S. Hoskins and M. R. Desart. A brick yard recently established by I. N. Goode, who is also engaged in the nursery business, is another one of the important events in Donald's history. A building is now in course of construction for a modern garage and blacksmith shop by J. C. Moore. Plans and specifications are made for a new flouring mill, and construction will begin in a few days by Mr. Kimball, who is financing the project. J. P. Feller is establishing a seed cleaning plant and other buildings are in contemplation.

The town is surrounded by a rich agricultural country, and hops and fruit are extensively produced.

The town was founded about a dozen years ago, when the Oregon Electric was built.
