George Miller went to Portland Sunday to visit his brother, Ed. B. Miller, who is at the Pacific Hospital for treatment for an infected foot. It was feared for a time that amputation of the foot might be necessary, but it is now hoped that it may be saved though two or three toes may be lost.

While wheat and oat yields in this section are averaging high this season, the yields are not as large as many growers expected. Wheat is running from 15 to 35 bushels per acre and oats from 40 to 75. Two threshing outfits are now at work in this vicinity—the Fry Brothers of Hubbard and N. E. Cole of this place.

It is said that the people who use the Wilsonville Ferry are disgusted with public ownership. They say the ferry has been out of commission about a third of the time since the county has owned and operated it, while under private ownership it was scarcely ever out of commission. The people do not like the idea of its closing without notice—except, of course, in case of a breakdown.

Lorin Kerr was here this week from Eola where he has been with the Huber Paving Co. The paving camp at that place having closed, he will go to one of the camps above Ashland. Frank Sandberg who has also been at Eola will probably move to Corvallis where another paving job is in progress under the direction of one of the state highway engineers, Mr. Garron, who was in charge here last year. "Cy" Yearney, sometimes known as "Sigh" is also at Corvallis.
