Entered as second class matter March 28, 1911, at the postoffice at Aurora Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Fortune Telling

A peril that daily threatens the future of countless homes and loveable families is the evil of so-called fortune telling—a survival of the medieval age. Modern science brands it a farce, yet this evil is constantly at work—breaking up families, destroying homes, and even the social fabric itself. Countless divorces may be traced to the door of the fortune teller.

The saloons with their intoxicating liquors were no greater menace than the hordes of fortune tellers that infest our cities. They menace the happiness of both young and old. As loyal Oregonians we should stamp this thing out. The only way to accomplish this is by the unrelenting arm of the law. Fortune tellers impede progress, destroy happiness, and make the lives of whole families wretched, and it must be utterly destroyed.

—LEE D. MARSH.

Suppose

Suppose that Oregon passed a law fixing the price of potatoes at 75 cents per 100 pounds, eggs at 10 cents per dozen, wheat at 60 cents per bushel, while the market price in Washington and California were double the state-fixed price in Oregon, what would Oregon farmers do?

They would, of course, ship their potatoes, eggs and wheat to the market that paid the higher price.

If the people of Oregon adopt the constitutional amendment fixing the legal rate of interest at 4 per cent, what will the owners of money (capital) do?

Like the farmer, they will, of course, lend their money where it commands the highest market price, where the interest rate is highest—outside the state of Oregon.

The matter at issue is so simple and so clear, that the average voter cannot fail to understand the danger of such an amendment, if the elector gives the question any consideration at all.

Smile—and even the Democrats will smile with you!

Many a man throws his tongue into high gear before he gets his brain going!

When a fellow begins to brag about the speed of his car, the editors begin to prepare his obituary.

Until Ponzi landed in jail we used to think he was doubling his money every 90 days running a newspaper on the sly in some Boston suburb.

A girl has been elected cashier of an Oregon bank. The report did not say that the use of regular vault would be discontinued, however.

"Aphrodite" is said to be billed for Portland, says an exchange. After witnessing the play and noting the costumes, the editor suggests that the play be renamed "aphroditidie."

The Woodburn school board is ready to receive Aurora high school pupils and is even anxious to aid in their transportation, thus displaying a spirit and enterprise incomprehensible to those who would close all high schools.

When we learn that the United States produces (and uses) more than half of all the paper in the world, it is not surprising that country papers have to pay 4 times as much for their paper on which this is printed as they did in 1916.

Business men who devote their entire energies trying to get business away from each other have the wrong point of view. It is cheaper and easier and better to create new customers than to take customers away from the other fellow, and the customer created is easier to hold as well as easier to get.

Few people note the character of the traffic along the Pacific Highway. A few days since, Herbert Hoover and family passed through Aurora, unseen and unheralded. Almost every day prominent men of this and other states motor through town, attracting no attention whatever. Governor Olcott's car has repeatedly passed over the highway through Aurora. Even the president of the Irish republic, and Pete D'Arcy went through unseen. All of which shows how little we notice or care about the movements of our big men—and how little they notice us!
