

There is a growing and insistent demand that all motorists observe the simple rules of fairness and safety on the roads. First of all the public has a right to demand the observance of the laws by motorists, most of whom are willing and anxious to make motoring safe. The comparatively few motorists who refuse to obey "the rules of the road", are typified by the fellow who insists that two-thirds of the road is his, who crowds your car off the pavement or into the ditch when you meet him, or who refuses to turn out so you can pass, when you overtake him. This "road hog" not only takes the pleasure out of motoring, but endangers the safety of all with whom he comes into contact. The disfavor and contempt with which he is regarded by other motorists is steadily growing, and he is cordially hated by the non-motoring public as well.
