

Opie Read Opens Address With Human Interest of President

"We were traveling through a fearful elongated mudhole that they called a road, up in Dakota, a big man and I, both of us on the same Chautauqua circuit for a four months engagement. We overtook a man, walking steadily, fearfully tired but brave. He was splashed from head to heel. "The big man insisted that he get in and ride. "No, I'm too muddy, but I thank you for your kindness just the same." The big man fairly dragged him into the car, and he settled down with a sigh of relief. When we got to the end of our travel, the man got out. "Sir," he said, "I don't know your name, and you'll never see or hear of me again; I'm just a common fellow. But

I want you to remember that you have the gratitude of one man who has been kicked and tromped on all his life, and your kindness is the brightest spot it has ever known." He passed on, and we really never did see him again. But the big man who had befriended the muddy stranger—he was Warren G. Harding, our president. "That is the kind of a man we have at the head of our government—a man kindly, sympathetic, sane." This was the first thing in the Opie Read lecture at the Chautauqua.

Dan C. Freeman, Manager of Associated Industries of Oregon, and George G. Guild, President of Columbia Paper Box Co., of Portland, were pleasant callers at the Observer office Wednesday, on their way through to Salem.

Mystery Tied with Red Tape

The time has long passed when a bank was surrounded with so much mystery and red tape that customers felt ill at ease every time they went to the bank to transact business.

Today the progressive bank is a FRIENDLY INSTITUTION—designed to give service cheerfully and as a BUSINESS DUTY rather than as a favor.

At least, that is how this bank regards it.

Perhaps that is one of the reasons why so many refer to this bank as "my bank" based on the spirit of friendliness and cooperation they encounter whenever they call. Perhaps, too, it is another reason why people like to save where they think they are welcome, and where, in addition, they know their money is absolutely safe. Whether you wish to open a savings or checking account, or wish to transact business in one of the other departments of this bank, you will appreciate this spirit of friendliness which we believe is good business.
