MISS ALICE WATTS RETURNS FROM CHINA

Was Principal Of Tung Chang Fu Girls' School At Shantung

CHINESE EAT MILLET

Also Carrots and Sweet Potatoes Poor Use very Little Rice—Live in Mud Huts

Miss Alice Watts returned home Tuesday from Shantung, China, where she was principal of the Tung Chang Fu School for Chinese girls for five years. She is now visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. H. C. Watts, and grand mother, Mrs. Alice Bascom, on Watson Street.

On March 25, all missionaries were advised to go to sea port towns and although there had been no fighting in Shantung, it was thought best to leave. Miss Watts was principal of this girls school and also taught the Bible and English. Most of the girls came from distant homes and the school term was for 6 months. No girls were allowed on the street unchaperoned and they always dress in native costume.

The better houses in China are made of brick but the poor live in mud huts. Most of the people at this point are very poor, taxes are high and the country is in the Yellow River basin, and there is always some disaster every year, a drought, flood, or the seeds are poor. The county is overrun by bandits, 200 in a troop, and they swoop down on a village, burn and take away everything of value.

Most people think that Chinese live on rice, this is not so, they eat millet, also carrots and sweet potatoes, which grow to a huge size.

Mrs. J. E. Stephen will give a free marcel with every shampoo on Monday and Thursday during the month of June. She will be seen at the Studio Barber Shop. Mrs. Stephens gives facials, hot oil shampoo, tar steams, manicuring, etc.

WORK RUSHED ON VIADUCT

Retaining Walls For Fills Completed also holes for Concrete Pillars Dug

USE LOTS OF CEMENT

Loads of Sand and Gravel Dumped Monday Getting Ready to Pour Concrete

The retaining wall on the viaduct extends about 100 feet past Ghormley's filling station. Monday the holes were dug for the huge pillars which are to hold up the center of the viaduct and crushed rock and a frame work of steel laid in the bottom preparatory to putting in the frame work for the concrete pillars.

The frame work on the retaining wall for the viaduct is nearly completed, will soon be ready for the concrete and the fill. A large force of men were required on this work most of them returning to their homes in Portland every night.

Fairwell Street is standing up well under the heavy traffic. The grading of the street has left some of the houses exceptionally high but it only makes them look more attractive especially the community church. Last week Rev. D. S. Sharpe planted ivy across the bank in front of the parsonage.

NOTICE—The Enterprise will appreciate it if those having items for publication will kindly present them not later than Tuesday evening.

Will Close Garage During Paving

Marsh's Garage will be closed during the paving of Lombard St. It will be impossible for them to do any repair work while the street is torn up. They intend to put in a cement runway from the street to their shop and this will have to harden before using.

GERMIQUETTE

The community was shocked to hear of the death of Miss Lila Germiquette, aged 21, Monday evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Germiquette.

She had been operated on for appendicitis three weeks previous and had returned to her home from St. Vincent's hospital in Portland. It was thought she was getting along very nicely. The end came unexpectedly. The funeral will be held Friday at 2 p. m. from the Christian Church, of which she was a member. W. E. Pegg has charge of the arrangements. She was a member of the graduating class of 1924, of Beaverton High School and has worked in the local telephone office for three years and four months.

She leaves besides her parents, one brother, Ben, sister, Mina at home, and sisters Alta, living at Shasta, California, and Mrs. Ruth James, in Nebraska.

Members of the class put on the program, inviting as their speaker, Dean Dubach, of Oregon Agricultural College, who presented in a series of anecdotes their maxims for the class to follow. He advised them to "have some definite place to go" "to go" and "to get there."

Music was furnished by Miss Virginia Paris, Mrs. Georgia Kearns, Miss Martha Woodruff and a Ladies quartet comprised of the Misses Ruth Maurer, Helen Stiles, Gladys Shellenberger, and Virginia Parks. The stage was beautifully decorated, the tribute of the junior class. A crowded house greeted the presentation of diplomas with cheers.

MONDAY IS DECORATION DAY

All Lot Owners Should See That The Cemeteries Are Cleaned Up

One Day Should be Devoted to the Memory of Those Who Have Passed On Monday is Memorial Day, a time to pay tribute, not only to the brave soldiers, who have fought and died for our country, but a day sacred to our loved ones who have passed on to the other shore.

In most of our towns there are only a handful of old soldiers of the war of 1861-5 or only a few soldiers of the late war, who may not be banded together so as to hold a special service at the cemetery, but each citizen should see that every soldier's grave is marked by a flag and at least a flower laid there. They fought for a principal, underwent hardships, many times without food or shelter from the weather and oftentimes died a terrible lingering death, away from friends or loved ones, and the least a grateful people can do is to spend a few hours one day in the year at their grave.

Next Sunday morning all the churches will have special Memorial Day services and a tribute will be paid to those who have died that our nation might live. People have been busy during the past week cleaning up the cemeteries, cutting the grass and weeds and trimming the shrubbery so that when Decoration day does come it will be a pleasure for people to pay a visit to the cemetery, leave a few flowers there and be happy in the thought that their loved ones sleep in a beautiful garden filled with flowers and trees.

Harry L. Hudson, manager of the Post of Portland Traffic Bureau, left Saturday for the National Foreign Trade Convention, which will be held in Detroit, this week.

MISS SWETT GROWS PINK DAFFODILS

Lives At Greenberg but Is Employed In Portland Goes In Every Day

2 BULBS WORTH $200

Had A Nice Prune Orchard On Place But Her Interest Lies In Bulbs

To Miss Nadia Swett, of Greenberg, belongs the honor of growing and exhibiting the first pink daffodil seen in Portland. The two pink daffodil bulbs on her place are worth $100 each.

Miss Swett is employed in Portland but lives at Greenberg, 1/2 mile from the station. She has three acres of land. A nice prune orchard yields her a profit, but her bulbs claim most of her attention. She has imported narcissus direct from Holland, and the rows and rows of bulbs extending to the orchard will some day yield her a tidy income. She likes the country and enjoys the flowers and spends every spare moment in her flower garden. Miss Swett has a cozy bungalow with every convenience and numerous pet cats and dogs.

Jack Raynard, who came up from Beaverton to the Monday luncheon, says that he has just completed the planting of 1000 filbert trees on 10 acres of the Peterson place at Midway, which he bought last year. That he expects some day to be extensively in the nut business is shown by the fact that he already has 10 acres planted four years ago to English walnuts. He is spending a part of his time on his farm just now, and may move to it for the summer months.—Hillsboro Independent.

Hit on Head by Piece of Glass

While Mrs. Summers was quietly sewing in her shop at Beaverton a table fifteen feet from the door, a truck passed by Saturday afternoon. There was a sound of broken glass as a pebble hit the window and a piece of glass nearly an inch across hit Mrs. Summers on the top of her head. It bled profusely but soon stopped. The pebble had gone through the glass, made a hole about an inch wide, cracking in a few places near the hole.
