PEOPLE FEAR RIDUCULE

"The greatest of all human fears, perhaps is the dread of appearing ridiculous. And the sting of ridicule is the truth which lies buried in it. For ridicule is but truth decked in clown's garb. No one objects to being called a fool, so long as he knows he isn't one. It is the knowledge of the truth that is the hurt of ridicule."

Cut the grass in your yard and in the street in front of your house. If it is cut now it will not grow again this year. If you do not cut the grass it will remain a fire hazard all summer.

SAVE PARKING SPACE, URGED

Motorists may not be able to solve the parking problem that confronts them in every city in the country, but they can do much to render the situation less acute by co-operating with one another to conserve to the utmost the space that is available on the streets for their cars. At present, a lack of co-operation is apparent on the part of thousands of motorists who park their automobiles haphazardly, using up the space that easily might be occupied by another car but for their carelessness.

These conditions are pointed out in a statement issued today by national headquarters of the American Automobile association in which Thomas P. Henry, president of the motoring association, appeals to car owners "to get together for at least a partial solution of one of the most acute problems confronting motordom today."

"It may be that the parking problem never will be solved to the satisfaction of the many interests that are vitally concerned with it," says Mr. Henry, "but this should not deter motorists from doing their share. Motor clubs, affiliated with the A. A. A. have noted in periodic surveys that careless parking practices on the part of individual drivers are important contributing factors to the congestion of which so much complaint is made."

"And, when organized motordom makes complaint against prevailing conditions, this gives public officials an opportunity to retort that motorists fail to take advantage of the space that is offered them for parking purposes. This is an answer the motor clubs frequently have heard in such instances."

Left Splendid Record in War and Council

John White Geary, who was born in Pennsylvania in 1819, seemed to do things in pairs; he studied both civil engineering and law; was territorial governor of Kansas and governor of Pennsylvania and won fame in two wars.

At the outbreak of the Mexican war he was chief engineer and superintendent of the Allegheny Portage railway. He helped to recruit the Second Pennsylvania volunteer regiment, in which he became lieutenant colonel and served through the war. After the capture of the Mexican capital he was promoted to colonel and was placed in command of that city.

Later he settled in San Francisco where, in 1849, he was appointed the first American postmaster. In 1856 he was appointed by President Pierce as territorial governor of Kansas. At the beginning of the Civil war he raised the Twenty-eighth Pennsylvania volunteer infantry, of which he became colonel. In 1862 he was made brigadier general, and three years later received the brevet rank of major general. In 1866 he was elected governor of Pennsylvania; was re-elected in 1869 and served until within eight days of his death, which occurred February 8, 1873, in Harrisburg.—Kansas City Star.
