

WHITE ELEPHANT COMING WITH CIRCUS

Secured Animal Making Only American Tour With Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Shows

It is the "greatest feature of all time," Pawah, the world-famed sacred white elephant of Burma is to be presented in the menagerie of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Shows when the big circus exhibits at Portland, Friday, August 26.

Pawah is the first of his kind to be found in more than three hundred years and the only genuine sacred white elephant ever brought to America. He is accompanied by his supreme keeper, Dr. S. D. Po Min, and attended by a retinue of fourteen native Burmese. The present is Pawah's only season in America, the Ringling Brothers being under bond to return him to Burma at the close of the tour.

Pawah is of those rare elephants that the Buddhists of today and centuries past have worshipped in the belief that in their huge bulk reposes the soul of Buddha. And certainly he is as different from those elephants with which the public is familiar as day is from night. His eyes are milk white, set with sparkling pupils. His skin is soft and pliable. His body is white as a "white man" is white. To quote the French authority, M. Dussard, he is "as gentle as a kitten and as beautiful as a Greek statue."

This rarest of beasts was found eight years ago in the jungles of Lower Burma, midway between Mandalay and Rangoon. Last summer he was brought to England under the protection of the British government and in the face of threats from the Buddhist priests who protested that his departure from Burma would bring dire calamities. More than two million people saw Pawah when he was presented under the auspices of the London Zoological Society. The bringing of the white elephant to America is in furtherance of the Ringling policy of constant enlargement. The arctic portion of this season's circus introduces five rings in place of the usual three. The Big Show's personnel numbers more than sixteen hundred people, and nine hundred horses. A hundred double-length railway cars are required to transport its ten thousand marvels, plus a special Pullman for Pawah and his attendants.

The Super-Boss

"There," said Shaggsley at the club there is a magnum . . . a leader among men; a man who controls 50, 100 jobs. His slightest word is a command to millions in money. When he frowns the United States treasury trembles!"

"Gee!" Harkness exclaimed. "Is he telephoning now to some bank president?"

"Now," he phoning his wife for permission to stay downtown for dinner."
