AN INSPIRATION

According to a New York daily, Clarence Mackay, wealthy telegraph company head, has forgiven his daughter, Ellen, for marrying Irving Berlin, noted popular song writer, in 1926.

That's a long time for a telegraph magnate to hold back information. He probably forgave Ellen immediately after her marriage, but refused to let her know his state of mind. That's the way of some fathers, you know.

There are a lot of things worse in this world than the marriage of a Gentile to a Jew, especially when one considers Mr. Berlin's rise to fame. Irving Berlin is a product of the Bowery, or, properly, of Chinatown, New York City. Here he sang and played the piano in cheap restaurants. When the restaurants needed a waiter, Berlin became one, according to the story. Who today does not know of Irving Berlin and of his stirring melodies and songs? His musical compositions were sung and marched to by the boys in France, England and Germany during the World War. His songs are of love, youth and the new aspirations of the present day. Some songs put life into the armies. "Always" inspires to fidelity and loyalty to the institution of home. Millions of people have found in Berlin's compositions a combination of the ballad that soothes and inspires and the rollicking jazz that speaks of the new day.

Who was Ellen Mackay? The society daughter of a millionaire society leader. She has, however, contributed to the advancement of humanity since marrying Berlin, for she is a mother. And now what will Irving do since the announcement of his father-in-law's forgiveness? Write another song, of course, from the inspiration and make millions more people happier.

MEXICAN IMMIGRATION

After a two-year study of Mexican immigration, Mr. Stuart, in the Christian Science Monitor, says that during the last few years more than a million Mexicans, mostly peons, have found employment in the United States. Just now they are pouring through our back door at the rate of a thousand a week. During the past eight months the total officially admitted exceeds the total recorded admissions for a hundred years preceding 1910. The Mexican population in the United States is now estimated at between two and three millions. Some 250,000 are employed on railroads west of the Mississippi and they have drifted into eastern and northern states and through the steel mills and agricultural states where several colonies have been formed. It costs but little for them to live, and they work for wages far below anything known in this country. This influx of cheap labor practically nullifies all benefits of our restricted immigration plan. We close the front door but leave the back door wide open.

KEEPS FEET ON THE GROUND

In accepting the $25,000 Woodrow Wilson Peace Award Col. Charles Lindbergh was the guest of the largest gathering of notable men ever held in this country, and he takes a place alongside of Elihu Root and Viscount Cecil, the other two recipients of the award. Norman H. Davis, president of the foundation, expressed the sentiment of America when he said that "while we admire him very much for what he has done, we admire him even more for what he is, evidenced not only by his skill and endurance, but by the way he keeps his feet on the ground when he is not flying."

Though we haven't much sympathy with some of the farm relief theories advanced, the politicians ought at least help the farmer produce enough straw for this year's straw votes.

Several years ago there was a movement started to clean up the movies. It ends with the startling disclosure that the movie producers have done the cleaning up.

After giving some of the professional lobbyists the once over, one concludes that there are more hogs in this country than can be made into pork.

If precedent means anything, a good many Democratic delegates will soon be packing up for a month's vacation in Houston.

If Uncle Sam really wants to end war he should withdraw the marines from Nicaragua and send them to Chicagua.

Mr. Hoover is not running so well in Chicago, we understand. Mayor Thompson heard him referred to as 'Erbert 'Oover.

FARM POINTERS

Pasturing of red clover in Oregon generally begins as soon as the ground is dry enough. In high altitude sections above 3,000 feet pasturing is normally ended by May 1, while in districts of long growing season the crop may usually be pastured until May 20 or June 1.

Thorough pasturing off of clover is generally the best procedure in Oregon where pasturing is practiced. Clipping before letting the second growth develop if there is not enough stock to keep the clover pastured down, is a good practice, finds the experiment station.

Religious Faith No

Secret in Jerusalem

In Jerusalem, the little city of great things, religious observances play a part in daily life unknown in other capitals. Since it is the center of three great faiths and all their subdivisions, can it be wondered if each faith and branch thereof jealously guards rights and rites acquired throughout centuries, of on through famine, siege and untold hardship?

In a modern city, one meets people daily for years without knowing their religious beliefs. This is impossible in Jerusalem. Be he occidental or oriental, every man's religion is known to all and also the fidelity with which he carries out the obligations imposed by his faith.

The religious festivals bring their own pageantry to the city. There are Muslims with their adherents from northern Africa, India, Afghanistan, Bokhara, Arabia, and the Sudan. Christians of all denominations: Latins, including many of the religious orders and the Uniate churches who acknowledge the supremacy of the pope; the eastern churches, which comprise the Orthodox, the Armenian and Syriac, Coptic, and Abyssinians; the Anglican church; the Jews, divided into Ashkenazim, Sephardim, Karaites, Yemenites, Georgians, and Bokharans. — National Geographic Magazine.
