Declare Natural Gas Gives More Heat Units

New Orleans--Natural gas gives considerably more heat than the artificial variety, the Louisiana conservation department says in its official publication.
Comparing the natural gas of the Louisiana field with that supplied in New Orleans by artificial means it found that the former had a heating value of 1,000 British thermal units a cubic foot and the latter only 800.
The heating value of natural gas, it explained, depends upon the relative percentages of the various hydrocarbons which it contains. Usually the chief constituent is methane, which has a heating value of 1,000 British thermal units a cubic foot.

TUALATIN

The Junior club held another one of those pleasant weiner roasts on the Tualatin river bank Wednesday evening, back of the John Nyberg farm. It is an ideal picnic park.

Work is going on apace on the road leading to the highway via the Tualatin Country club. The club it is understood, has given $1000 toward the project. Several have been paid for land along the right of way. The corner off the Ball acreage was worth $150. Art Iel, Wilson Brothers, Dick Longstaff and Winona cemetery all lost some land while Fred Wourms and George Martin gained some. The road will be 60 feet wide.

BAD ROAD TAX IS HIGH

Motorists pay a bad roads tax equivalent to 22.3 cents on every gallon of gas consumed on a poor highway. The Oregon State Motor association reports that this conclusion was drawn from experiments recently conducted in Washington, Iowa and North Carolina.

The figures were based on the promise of a car making ten miles to the gallon on a rough highway.
On the basis of a speed of 33 miles per hour, the test showed the cost of gasoline and tires per one thousand miles over rough roads used in the experiments was $35.10 for an average four cylinder car weighing 3500 pounds loaded. The cost for the same car at the same speed over a very smooth improved road was only $12.80, according to the tests.
