THE EVOLUTION OF PARTIZANISM

Key-note speeches, their crackling tones reverberating to every nook and cranny of America and the border countries by means of a national broadcast hook-up, have sounded in certain terms the issues between the Democratic and Republican parties.

Senator Fess, with his usual fiery, yet dignified language, key-noted the Republican delegation and radio listeners with a challenging tone of defiance to all who might turn from the Republican standard as carried on by the Coolidge administration.

Claude Bowers, on the other hand roused his personal listeners, and no doubt thousands of radio hearers, to a high pitch of enthusiasm when he struck his famous phrase that "we will not stand for reaching in the farmer's pocket and clutching at the farmer's throat." Mr. Bowers is an eloquent speaker. He has always been a "key-noter" in Democratic circles.

Though issues apparently vary between these parties, all good Americans are wanting the identical same things in governmental efficiency and honesty. The differences are in proposals of various forms of relief and administration.

The real issues nowadays are men. Partizanism has emerged from fundamental precepts or concepts of government to the political worship of personalities. It is Hoover, Lowden, Smith, Borah, Reed, Dawes, Curtis, Robinson and other personalities that keep in the public eye and in the public mind. All of these men are good citizens and good Americans. It is not a question of the overthrow of government, or of a change in its form. It has come to be a question of men, a matter of personalities. In this, history is repeating itself. Alexander, Caesar, Napoleon, Cromwell, Washington, Jefferson, Solomon, Lincoln, Jackson, Hamilton and other types held the front stage. It was through personalities that issues found their avenue for expression and accomplishment. It will always be thus.

Try as we may, we can not separate the human element in society nor in government. Even Hoover, now the idol of Republicanism, was a few years ago considered almost neutral as between the two recognized parties of America. Thousands even thought of him as a Democrat, and he was a right-hand man in the Wilson administration.

We are attaching no reproach or criticism to this, but merely wish to point out a specific instance of the independence of thought embodied in even a candidate for president of the United States in this supposed time of greatest cleavage to partizan principles.

Issues give us things to talk about, but after all, it is men who govern or administer and control long after issues are forgotten.

You can't expect to keep body and soul together when you do things that makes the soul not want to associate with the body.

Modern automobiles are equipped with non-shatterable glass in the windshield. Now for something non-chatterable in the back seat.

"The Baby That Walks Like a Bear Need Not Alarm Its Mother," reads a head-line in the Literary Digest. It's the baby who dances like one that should cause maternal apprehension.

"When do we eat?" is a clever phrase, but "Why do we eat so much and often?" is a more sensible one.

We will stand for any kind of a dry plank so long as we are assured that the majority on the committee are sober when they write it.

The back-to-the-farm movement has developed into a bankers-back-the-farm movement.

If China and Nicaragua were close enough together they could fight it out without anybody's intervention.

So long as mother spends $7.50 at a beauty shop while dad shaves himself, you can expect a condition of unrest in the home.

Prosperity! The United States produces more than two-thirds of the world's oil, and three-fourths of the world's oil scandals.

After November 6, everybody, including the farmer, will get some relief.

COMMENTS

As was to be supposed, eastern newspapers are referring to the president's summer home as "out west." Wisconsin out west? Ye gods! If Wisconsin is out west, where in the dickens is Oregon?—Hillsboro Independent.

The Republican party national ticket, Hoover and Curtis, stands for the principles that have always actuated this great body of voters. The ticket marks a fusing once again of the great forces which originally made the Republican party possible—industry and agriculture. As voters, will continue to investigate the personnel of the presidential and vice-presidential nominees, they will realize its strength and dependability to steer the ship of state safely and calmly.—McMinnville News Reporter.

According to the Bureau of Public Roads, the total automobile registration last year amounted to 23,127,315 vehicles—or one motor vehicle for every 5.13 persons, the bureau says. If one guess is as good as another in explaining that decimal fraction, perhaps it represents the overflow of anatomies transported in rumble seats.—Nations Business.
